A Plan Mao Approves?

One of the more intriguing stories out of the Red China-Quemoy-Matsu-Formosa area is that Mao Tse-tung privately has encouraged the Asian bloc in the United Nations to try and organize pressure from the 20,000,000 "Overseas" Chinese which would force Chiang Kai-shek to agree to a withdrawal from the disputed islands.

This would be a face saving for Mao.

Chiang, if compelled to agree, could save face by announcing that in the interests of peace he would agree to neutralize the islands and remove his troops.

As a part of the package deal Formosa would also be neutralized and Communist China would abandon any designs of aggression against that island.

It is not generally recognized that the Nationalists on Formosa receive very considerable financial support from the Overseas Chinese—including those in the United States. More important than direct contributions is the trade with Chiang's government. If it were not for this the United States could not have afforded the cost of maintaining it. Formosa is a rich land. The standard of living there has always been relatively good.

Chinese Associations

As late as a week ago the Chinese associations in the United States were running newspaper ads calling on the United States to stand firm in its commitment to defend the offshore islands. Now, however, the U.S. policy has been "restudied," and, without question, this country wishes to reach some negotiated settlement.

The Asian bloc of nations in the United Nations attempted to have the Formosa issue brought before that body. They were defeated. Since that time a number of them have quietly persevered in working at organizing the many millions of Overseas Chinese.

What success the bloc has had remains unknown. The odds would seem greatly against it. Yet, should they succeed it would not be too much more of a surprise than was the sudden union of the Arab factions which produced the dramatic settlement of that flaming issue at the recent emergency session of the General Assembly.

The Overseas Chinese are believed to have reached the conclusion recently announced by Secretary Dulles that there is now no prospect of Chiang's return to the mainland without full U.S. support. This, in effect, removes the major reason for his being there. But, even so, the United States cannot, and should not, desert him. We are going to be forced to do a somewhat "sticky" or ethically immoral thing—"restudy" a treaty.

Nothing Immoral

Britain's great Gladstone once said, "nothing immoral is good politics." That is true. But we are up against the awkward fact of having a bear by the tail and not knowing how to turn it loose. There are no established techniques for it. Whatever we do, we lose prestige. The other alternative is to go to war. Neither choice is good politics.

Those who think war inevitable and now the best time to let it come argue that the political result of any successful pressure on Chiang by the Overseas Chinese would mean that they would then quickly orient themselves toward the Peiping government. This is a very real, even likely, danger.

But it also is equally true that Chiang can't mount a return to the mainland. The Chinese Communist terror and regimentation may in time produce its own revolution, growing out of its own people and supported by some elements of its own troops. If so, outside help might then come to them from this country or, not too improbably, the Russians.

The Overseas Chinese, if they could trade with a Formosan government—and Formosa has always been Chinese in character, though under Japan for more than 50 years—might not shift to Peiping. It is not a sound hope. But it is a hope.

There are no known directions for turning loose a bear's tail.

Embezzling $85,695 Laid To Tax Aides

By RICHARD ASHWORTH

Embezzlement of more than $85,000 in state funds was charged Wednesday by the Fulton County Grand Jury to two former Revenue department officials already under indictment in sales tax irregularities.

The new five-count indictment, returned by the grand jury during a special session, charged Joseph W. Ray, former director of the state sales and use tax division, and W. W. Coleman, onetime consultant, with taking $85,695.65.

$93,095 TOTAL

The total amount charged in the indictment brings to $93,095.65 the amount the grand jury has charged Coleman and Ray with embezzling either themselves, or with the aid of others.

Earlier the grand jury jointly indicted Coleman, Ray, James B. McGregor and Fisher Mauney for allegedly embezzling $1,165.63, and charged Coleman, Ray and McGregor in three counts with taking a total of $6,300.

Both Fulton Sol. Gen. Paul Webb and Special Prosecutor Paul Webb declared Wednesday that they are "not completely through with the sales tax department. The investigation is continuing."

OCT. 20 TRIAL

Webb also revealed that he has asked that the new indictment be set on the Fulton Superior Court calendar for trial Oct. 20, along with the two earlier indictments. That calendar is to be definitely set Thursday by Judge Claude D. Shaw.

The solicitor general added that the state will "try to hold" the defendants "to a legal excuse" in any attempts they make to get trial of their cases delayed.

The two officials would not comment directly on reporters' questions as to how the embezzlement was accomplished. They pointed, however, to an earlier statement they had released describing how an "embezzlement ring" had operated in the Revenue department.

In that statement they said that members of the ring would intercept returns and payments filed by taxpayers, destroy the returns and prepare fraudulent returns which listed a substantially lower amount of tax than the taxpaper reported. The returns would be filed, the smaller amount paid into the treasury, and the difference pocketed by

Cardinals Will Vote In 3 Weeks

By FRANK BRUTTO

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (AP)—Pius XII, for 19 troubled years the "Pope of Peace," died Thursday in the papal summer castle alongside Lake Albano.

A crucifix lay on his chest and a rosary in his hands in the final hours.

Two strokes, developing into a grave condition of the heart and lungs, carried him away under the weight of his 82 years.

Excerpts from notable messages and speeches by Pius XII, Page 8. Possible successor, Page 28.

The Vatican radio said death occurred at 3:52 a.m. (9:52 p.m. Atlanta time Wednesday).

ANNOUNCED BY PRIEST

The announcement of death was made by a Jesuit priest, the Rev. Francesco Pellegrino, who had broadcast developments from an ante chamber of the Pope's death room for the past two days.

He said: "With soul profoundly saddened we give you now, at 3:56 a.m. the following announcement: The Holy Father, Pius XII, is dead. Pius XII, the man most esteemed and venerated in the world, one of the greatest pontiffs of the century, passed away in saintly manner at 3:53 today."

Eugene Cardinal Tisserant, dean of the College of Cardinals, made the official recognition of the Pope's death.

He entered the death chamber, lifted a white cloth that covered the Pope's face, and announced to other cardinals present that Pius XII was dead. Then the fisherman's ring, symbol of papal power, was removed from the Pope's hand.

VATICAN RITES

The body will be borne back to Vatican City, 18 miles from Castel Gandolfo, for the funeral rites.

He was the 261st pope and the first to die outside Rome since the 18th century.

The new pope will be designated by the College of Cardinals in an election expected to be held at the Vatican within the next two or

Anjette's Threat To 'Kill' Is Told

By CELESTINE SIBLEY
Constitution Staff Writer

MACON—The money motive swelled in the Anjette Lyles murder trial Wednesday, and a mysterious letter which has figured in the case since last May was brought to unexpected light as Rep.-elect Taylor Phillips, onetime lawyer for the defendant, was placed on the stand as the prosecution's surprise witness of the day.

Earlier, the husband of a woman who worked at Anjette's restaurant testified that two or three months before little Marcia Elaine Lyles died he heard the defendant call her a "little Lyles-looking ——" and tell her if she didn't behave "I'll kill you."

Phillips told the jury Mrs. Lyles showed him two bankbooks listing amounts totaling between $80,000 and $90,000 to the credit of her late mother-in-law, Mrs. Ben F. Lyles Sr., and asked him how to persuade Mrs. Lyles to make a will.

A few days before she was arrested on warrants charging her with the quadruple murder of her mother-in-law, two husbands and her 9-year-old daughter, the handsome restaurant operator showed a photostatic copy of a letter which she said would clear her of two of the deaths, the attorney stated.

Phillips said neither of the conversations was confidential and he was not acting as her attorney at the time.

Phillips said she showed him the letter when he went to the hospital where she was confined with phlebitis last May to warn her that she was probably going to be arrested in the alleged multiple poisonings, to tell her he was not available to represent her and to advise her to get "a couple of good lawyers."

"She asked me if it was about Marcia's death," Phillips said. "She said, 'My maid has seen Marcia drink Terro Ant Poison

2 Arrested In Death of Decaturite

By KEELER McCARTNEY

A paroled convict and his blonde companion Wednesday were being returned to Georgia to face murder charges in the robbery-slaying of a Decatur mortician, police said.

N. R. Johnson, special agent in charge of the Atlanta FBI office, said complaints were filed in Atlanta charging the two with interstate transportation of an auto stolen from the victim, Virgil Glenn Gray, 48, of 133 Lockwood Terr., Decatur.

The FBI said the two, Hoyt Ledford, 43, and Mrs. Loraine Icey Tate Stanga, 31, who were arrested at Bethany, Okla., in a car which Gray was driving when he disappeared last Saturday, had waived extradition.

Statements by Ledford and Mrs. Stanga placed the scene of the slaying near Cedartown, officers said. Medical examiners previously had said Gray was killed late Saturday or Sunday.

In his statement Ledford accused Mrs. Stanga of "setting up" Gray for the robbery-slaying, officers said.

Ledford was quoted that he met Mrs. Stanga here Sept. 30—the same day he was granted a conditional release from the U.S. penitentiary — and saw her again Oct. 2.

"She was telling me about a man she knew who had a lot of money," Ledford was quoted. "She said she had a date with him Saturday. I waited in her apartment, and when they came in he resisted and I hit him with a pistol."

Ledford was quoted that they took $21 from Gray and then together placed the 285-pound man in the trunk of the car he was

Victim of Rabies Dies; Aldredge Kin Get Shots

The rabies scare that has swept through Metropolitan Atlanta during the past two weeks was marked Wednesday by the death of a 55-year-old man believed to have been Atlanta's first rabies victim since 1946.

Willie Ester Ray of 265 Decatur St., SE, died Wednesday morning in Grady Hospital, 25 days after being bitten by a dog and eight days after being admitted to the hospital.

The Ray family consented Wednesday night for an autopsy to be performed Thursday. A Grady spokesman said that although Ray exhibited usual symptoms of the disease, a diagnosis of rabies cannot be considered positive until results of the autopsy are known.

Ray had been under heavy sedation and unconscious for several days prior to his death, a doctor said.

Meanwhile, the daughter and son-in-law of Fulton County Commissioner James H. Aldredge were added to the growing list of Atlantans having to take antirabies injections.

Aldredge said a state laboratory test of a neighbor's dog, which both his daughter, Sarah, and her husband, Billy Cleveland, had handled over a period of two weeks,

Yanks Win, 4-3, And Even Series

By OSCAR FRALEY

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—Bullet Bob Turley's three-pitch relief hurling and Moose Skowron's vital 10th-inning single ruined the gallant history book pitching of weary Warren Spahn Wednesday as the New York Yankees downed the Milwaukee Braves, 4-3, to square the World Series at three games all.

Turley, called from the bull pen with two men on and two out in the 10th, fired three pitches and got pinch-hitter Frank Torre on a looping shot to second baseman Gil McDougald. And it was McDougald who, with the score tied at 2-2 in the 10th, led off with a home run which put the Yankees in front and inspired a rally in which Elston Howard and Yogi Berra hit back to back singles that routed Spahn — and set the stage for Skowron's winning blow off relief pitcher Don McMahon.

The Braves tried desperately to get those two runs back, but fell just one short. They had been handcuffed for four innings by the fireball relief work of strong-armed Ryne Duren. But, with one away, he wavered by passing Johnny Logan. Duren got Eddie Mathews next but Hank Aaron slapped out a single which scored Logan, who had advanced unmolested to second on Duren's windup.

Big Joe Adcock came through then with a single to center which sent Aaron racing to third and Turley — called on with only one day's rest after winning Monday's game at New York—strode in from the bullpen to set down Torre.

It was a sad tale of defeat for Spahn and the Braves almost as much as it was of jubilant victory for the comeback Yankees as the second extra-inning game of the

All World Is Poorer, Says Ike

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower said Wednesday night "the world is poorer because of the death" of Pope Pius XII.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said the President was told of the Pontiff's death before he retired.

The Chief Executive said, "His (the Pope's) was a full life of devotion to God and service to his fellow men. I was privileged to know him personally. With men of goodwill everywhere, I mourn his passing."

Eisenhower said the Pope was "an informed and articulate foe of tyranny, he was a sympathetic friend and benefactor to those who were oppressed, and his helping hand was always quick to aid the unfortunate victims of war."

The President said:

"Without fear or favor, he consistently championed the cause of a just peace among the nations of the earth. A man of profound vision, he kept pace with a rapidly changing universe, yet never lost sight of mankind's eternal destiny."

Publicly Paid Teachers Ruled Out For Virginia's 'Private' Schools

By The Associated Press

A federal judge Wednesday slammed another door on the South's hopes to escape racial integration of classrooms when he ruled publicly paid teachers must not work in Virginia's makeshift private schools as long as they are segregated.

Already denied use of public school buildings for private classes in Arkansas, segregationists thus had the second major prop knocked from beneath their private school plans.

The teacher barrier was set up in U.S. District Court at Harrisonburg, Va., while Gov. Orval E. Faubus of Arkansas shaped a nationwide drive for funds to operate segregated, private schools in Little Rock.

At Harrisonburg, Judge John Paul ruled that private schools already operated on a make-do basis at Charlottesville and planned for Warren County must admit Negroes or stop using teachers idled when schools in those areas were closed by the state after being ordered to admit Negroes.

He refused, however, to order the reopening of the public schools in the two cities on an integrated basis, as requested by the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People. He declined to rule on the constitutionality of the state law under which the schools were closed, on the ground that a test now is being made in the Supreme Court of Virginia.

Paul said he felt his court does not have the right to order reopening of the public schools "but it does have the right to say if the state is to abandon public education it must abandon it completely." He added that continued conducting of segregated classes in homes and elsewhere with the state providing most of the money "would be a clear violation of the mandate of the U.S. Supreme Court."

Apparently accepting the position of the federal courts that public owned buildings and public money cannot be used for segregated school operations, Faubus

His Heart Beat for All, Bishop Hyland Says

Roman Catholic clergy and laity in Atlanta Wednesday night joined with Catholics throughout the world in mourning the death of Pope Pius XII.

"Both the church and the world have lost a vigorous, learned and saintly spiritual leader," the Most Rev. Francis E. Hyland, Catholic bishop of Atlanta, said soon after word of the Pontiff's death had reached here.

"Pius XII will be remembered by the world as one whose Christ-like heart beat with sympathy for the poor and afflicted of all nations," Bishop Hyland said. "He will be remembered for his efforts to promote a just and lasting peace. But perhaps even more so for the world-wide charity, which issued forth from the Vatican to alleviate the misery and suffering which followed and still follow in the wake of World War II."

Hughes Spalding Sr., prominent Catholic layman, pointed out that Pius XII "will be remembered for his fight against Communism and for keeping Italy from going Communist."

Spalding, who together with Clarence Haverty was knighted by Pope Pius XII in 1951, added, "The loss to the world is a great one, not only to Roman Catholics but to the entire Christian world."

Bishop Hyland, in his state-

Nixon Gives GOP A 'Truman' Chance

Rise in Economy Held To Favor Republicans

By RUSSELL BAKER

(Copyright 1958 by The New York Times Co.)

PHILADELPHIA—Vice President Nixon said Wednesday night that the rise in the national economy offered Republican candidates this year a chance to equal Harry S. Truman's political triumph in 1948.

Addressing 1,600 Pennsylvania Republicans at a $100-a-plate dinner, he tried to cheer the party with the argument that all ingredients are now present for Republicans to do what former President Truman had done to them 10 years ago—surprise the forecasters by winning against long odds.

To support this, the Vice President cited four factors which, he said, paralleled those in the 1948 campaign. First, he said, he had found "record crowds" at every meeting he had addressed in four states visited last week. Second, he said, he had found the Democrats "over-confident" in each state.

TAKE UNDERDOG ROLE

Republicans, accepting the role of underdog, were waging an "all-out fight," he added. And "most important," he said, "the economy is moving up. People realize the recession is over and that the United States is headed for a good year in 1958 and the best year in history in 1959."

At this same stage in the 1948 campaign, he said, "no one gave Harry Truman or the Democrats a chance." They had won, he said, because Truman, "to his credit," refused to concede and waged a fighting campaign, and because the economy had improved substantially during the four weeks before election day.

The spectacle of Nixon offering Truman as a model for Republicans to emulate was doubly interesting because he has also been using Truman, as well as the preceding Roosevelt administration, to symbolize the unpleasantness he says will result from a Democratic victory this year.

OPENING SHOTS MILD

He hit this theme again Wednesday night. If more Democrats were elected to Congress this fall, he asserted, they would come from the "radical" wing of the party. The result, he said, would mean higher taxes, inflation and stifling of new investment.

To return to the "bankrupt ideas" of the New Deal and Fair Deal, he said, would halt the nation's economic progress.

In view of the comparatively strong Republican line against the Democrats laid out at the White House meeting Monday with state Republican leaders, Nixon's opening shots in his first campaign swing through the East were fairly gentle, however.

CHINA ISSUE SAME

Aside from emphasizing the political importance to Republicans of gains in the economy, he also urged the party to get off the defensive on the foreign-policy issue.

"All the criticism in the world," he said, could not obscure the fact that a Republican administration had "got the United States out of one war, kept it out of others, and has kept the peace without surrender of principle or territory."

Turning to the situation off the China mainland, he emphasized that this country's policy remained one of firmness despite the apparent lessening of tension within the past few days.

Accordingly, he said, there has been no change in the orders given the Seventh Fleet about convoying supplies to Quemoy and Matsu.

Pro-Rights Democrat Is Ousted in Louisiana

Gov. Long, Segregation Leaders Defeat Committeeman 'Unfaithful' to South

BATON ROUGE (AP)—A coalition of Gov. Earl Long and segregation leaders branded Camille F. Gravel unfaithful to a fighting South Wednesday and snatched away his Democratic national committee post.

Louisiana party leaders voted 69-30 to oust the 43-year-old Alexandria attorney, who had been under fire for a year because of his stand backing the national party's civil rights program.

101 MEMBERS

The 101-man Democratic State Central Committee ignored Gravel's loud refusal to quit. He said he would fight the ouster before the Democratic National Committee.

Members quickly named committee Vice Chairman Jett M. Talbot, a prosegregation leader, the new national committeeman.

Committee members backing his removal sharply reminded Gravel state law provides party officers, as well as national committeeman, serve at the pleasure of the central committee.

"HAND-IN-GLOVE"

A charge against Gravel came from Dist. Atty. Leander Perez of Plaquemines and St. Bernard parishes, former States' rights official and outspoken segregationist.

Gravel is "working hand in glove with national Democratic Chairman Paul Butler," Perez asserted. "And Butler has challenged the South by saying the next national Democratic convention will take a strong stand on civil rights, and the South can go along or else. Gravel would go along with the Northern radical wing of the Democratic party."

State Rep. John Garrett, who sponsored the Gravel ouster resolution, told committee colleagues "Gravel is tried, condemned and convicted by the words out of his own mouth of disloyalty to the people he is obligated to protect."

Gravel, father of 10 and a leading Catholic layman, emphatically repeated his belief "that purely as a moral proposition, segregation is wrong."

Ugly, Brutal Attacker Of Beauties Is Hunted

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—An ugly man with cruel, deep-set eyes whose hatred for beautiful women leads him to attack them was being sought here Wednesday.

The latest victim is the daughter of an FBI agent, Mrs. Lynda Taylor, once a runnerup in a Houston beauty contest.

A Monday night assault on Mrs. Taylor in her apartment was strikingly similar to those on two other beautiful women, one of whom was killed.

SAME MAN

Homicide Capt. Weldon Waycott said there is a possibility all three attacks were made by the same man.

Mrs. Taylor, a divorcee, was found in a pool of blood. She had been beaten savagely about the face by a man she said posed as a police officer to gain admittance to her apartment.

Mrs. Taylor described her attacker as an ugly man with short, blond hair.

BEATEN TO DEATH

Mrs. Frederike Flintrop, a blonde German beauty, was beaten to death last Feb. 26, in her apartment, by a man described by her husband as having dirty blond hair and cruel, deep-set eyes.

On the night of Aug. 6, Miss Beverly Krichamer, 18, beautiful blonde daughter of District Judge Arnold Krichamer, was beaten by an intruder who slipped into her home. Miss Krichamer gave a similar description of her assailant.

WAS ASLEEP

Mrs. Taylor said she was asleep in her apartment with her daughter, Kellie, 6, when she was awakened by the ringing of the door bell.

She found a note under the door. Scrawled in ink, it read:

"You just think you scared me off. I'll be back and this time you won't be so lucky. That beautiful face and body won't be so desirable any more. Beautiful women make me sick. No one can help you now. Don't try."

"POLICE OFFICER"

Mrs. Taylor said when she asked who was at the door, a man's voice replied: "I am a police officer."

She opened the door, she said, and a man in civilian clothes lunged inside her apartment and seized her by the throat. She said she struggled with the man, and he beat her with some instrument.

True Story

Boys Shown The Value Of Thrift

Three unhappy little brothers, dressed in cast-off men's clothing, meet each night about dark at the candy bar of the Carver Boys' Club, a Community Services agency.

Sam, the oldest, is 10. John is 8 and Albert only 6. They have no father. They live in one cluttered room with their mother, who works at night.

After school each afternoon, the youngsters sell newspapers in different neighborhoods. They meet at the Boys' Club each evening, and used to squander every cent they made on crackers and candy.

After many quiet talks with them, the Boys' Club director persuaded these youngsters to save a dime a day. Each boy put his dime in an envelope marked with his name and left it at the club.

The boys have been following this system for some time.

Now, Albert has a new pair of shoes and a Lone Ranger gun. John has a nearly new coat that fits, and Sam has his first pair of dungarees his size.

But more important, the boys are learning to work and save for what they need.

This thing happened. It is a documented case history from the files of Community Services. To give youngsters like these a chance to grow up straight costs money. Give generously. Give now for Community (Chest) Services.

Merit System Gets Temporary Relief

Revenue Commissioner T. V. Williams at last has taken steps toward bringing his department into compliance with Merit System requirements.

It took firm action to get the high-handed commissioner finally embarked upon his house-cleaning task. The State Merit Board had tried and failed. Likewise Gov. Griffin, who nevertheless has insisted upon carrying Williams on his back to the detriment of the Griffin administration.

Only after being faced with the possibility of a 24-count indictment by the July-August Fulton County Grand Jury did Williams agree to straighten out his empire.

Even so, the current grand jury still would do well to make a thorough check to see that he does a complete job of cleaning up the mess instead of merely swiping at it.

Never again should any Georgia governor allow a department head to indulge himself in an abuse of powers as was done in the present instance where prolonged and flagrant defiance of regulations served to weaken the effectiveness of the Merit System.

Strict compliance with its provisions goes hand-in-glove with the economy program that must be launched next year in the wake of the four-year spending spree that has drained the state treasury.

Eradication of Rabies Is Community Challenge

While not yet definitely diagnosed as rabies, a man suspected of being a victim of the disease died yesterday at Grady Hospital. The death occurred during the worst rabies scare here in a number of years, a scare which the facts properly justify, although there is no cause for panic.

The Fulton County Health Department reports that 8,000 dogs have been inoculated against rabies in the past eight days at veterinary clinics in the county. This is a good beginning but only a beginning on the job which must be done.

It is incredible that in an urban county like Fulton there could be a serious outbreak of rabies. And yet the figures show it to be true. Dog owners themselves are responsible through failure to have their animals inoculated according to law.

Health officials are studying methods to improve enforcement of regulations as well as impoundment of stray dogs. Literally hundreds of the latter are reported by residents in various sections of the county. This situation should be remedied.

If dog owners themselves would assume the responsibility of having their dogs inoculated, as Fulton Health Commissioner Hackney says, rabies could be eradicated. But until they do, officials should make every effort to impound all animals on which evidence of inoculation cannot be found and to hold their owners responsible.

Justice Is Jeopardized By Interminable Delay

"Deliberate speed" means many things to many individuals.

But in the matter of countless cases pending before U.S. courts, it appears undue emphasis is being placed upon "deliberate" and not enough upon "speed."

Warren Olney, director of the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts, reports that some 75,000 cases are awaiting disposition. This is admittedly the biggest backlog in history.

A citizen is presumed innocent until proved guilty, but to all intents and purposes a person awaiting trial is in a state of judicial limbo as far as his reputation and means of livelihood are concerned. Justice is jeopardized by undue delay.

The Constitution guarantees that "the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial. . . ."

It is true that judges are overworked; it is equally true that the judicial system itself and the public are victims of a straitjacket of ponderous procedures that tend to obstruct the reasonably rapid flow of justice through the courts.

Bar associations and lawyers themselves have a responsibility to facilitate and to press for expeditious as well as judicious administration of justice.

This judicial snafu isn't confined by any means to the federal courts; state and local courts, too, find themselves swamped with work. Delays of several months and even years are the rule rather than the exception.

With population expanding rapidly and the centers of population shifting radically, it is imperative that careful attention be given the necessity for reform and revision of the entire judicial setup.

Otherwise the pile of pending cases will grow, like Jack's beanstalk, until it reaches unmanageable proportions.

Suppression of Revolt In Iraq Is Reassuring

It was but a few weeks ago that the Middle East crisis filled the news pages and crowded noisily along the air waves. Because Quemoy and Formosa have claimed that hot spot, an important piece of news in Iraq passed by in less prominent headlines.

Premier Abdel Kerim Kassem, who headed the recent revolution which toppled the pro-Western government there, has quelled his first revolt. Col. Abdel Salam Aref has been arrested and a regiment disarmed. This is important because the rebellious colonel was first of all a Nasser man. His loyalty was to Egypt, not Iraq.

Premier Kassem is not pro-West. But he certainly has not thrown in with Nasser. He is trying to steer a course between Nasser, Russia and the United States. He has been making enough attacks on U.S. imperialism to keep the extremists quiet, but he continues to maintain all diplomatic relationships with the Western nations and apparently is proceeding on an "Iraq first" basis.

That he was strong enough to put down his chief army leader indicates his regime and his own personal command are stronger than had been imagined. It is, in a very real sense, a quite reassuring and stabilizing bit of news.

The Bagpipes Will Play For Bob Jones Today

It was pleasantly warming to read that the ancient city and golf capital of St. Andrews, Scotland, today will bestow upon Atlanta's Robert Tyre Jones the "Freedom of St. Andrews."

This is not one of those honors which are lightly given. In fact, Bob Jones is the second American to receive it. The first was Benjamin Franklin, some 200 years ago.

Many of these British awards, dating back many centuries, are somewhat sensational in our time. Bobby may now have his laundry hung out to dry on the land taken, several hundred years ago, from the township and given over to golf.

Bob Jones is the one great athletic hero of the so-called "Golden Days of Sports," the mad and gay twenties, who never once has shown feet of clay.

The Scots know this. They love him and honor him as do his home folks.

Art Exhibit Provides Aid to Native Talent

Those who have seen the 1958 Southeastern Annual Art Exhibition at the Peachtree galleries of the Atlanta Art Assn. are pleased with the evidence it provides of continued progress in development of native Southern artists. Certainly this year's exhibition is one of the best.

One of the more important regional shows in the country, the exhibition will be open at the galleries through Oct. 12.

Prize winners this year include artists from Chattanooga, Tenn., Sarasota, Fla., Atlanta, Auburn, Ala., and East Point. They shared $1,800 in purchase prize money. The winning paintings will be added to the permanent collection of the Atlanta Art Assn.

This splendid activity, which gives encouragement and support to native artists and permits the public to learn of their work, has become a major cultural program of the Southeast. Congratulations are due the sponsors, the winners and the many fine artists whose work is displayed.

Racing Ambulances Do More Harm Than Good

As city traffic has thickened, countless persons have begun to question the wisdom of ambulances racing headlong along crowded streets and running red lights.

The American College of Surgeons, meeting in the Windy City, has added its official voice to the growing demand for safer driving by ambulance operators.

The surgeons are concerned about the safety of their patients who ride in these ambulances.

An analysis of a survey in Flint, Mich., discloses that of 2,500 deliveries to hospitals, "Ninety-eight per cent of the cases would have gotten along just as well if they had been delivered to the hospital by ox cart."

If this survey is an accurate indication of conditions in other cities, it is a clear indictment of the present reckless driving policy condoned by police and public alike.

Angry Atlantan Lambastes Dog Owners Who Refuse To Care for Their Animals

Atlanta — Thanks for the continued publicity on the rabies situation in Atlanta. Apparently dog owners are a special class of a sort of aristocracy beyond the reach of the law and, may I add, in some cases beyond common decency.

Now I am not a "dog hater," as some kindly soul will immediately write in and proclaim me. But I am fed up to the ears with dog owners who show utterly no consideration for their animals, their neighbors or the law.

My neighborhood literally crawls with dogs. Only one neighbor kept up his dog, which was a fine, kindly beast of which I was truly very fond. When he discovered, first, that his children, who had begged for the dog, were not interested in it after they got it and when he found how much trouble it was to keep it up, he gave it away. And frankly I missed it.

But the others make no claim or effort to keep up their dogs. Several have been killed by cars because of this.

How many have been inoculated against rabies I have no way of knowing. Many wear no tags.

The Health Department has been notified repeatedly. Sometimes someone comes out, looks around and, if not bitten within a minute or so, drives away.

I would suggest that the police be given concurrent jurisdiction in enforcing the law.

Some rigid enforcement would terminate what is at best a nuisance and at worst a deadly danger to children and adults.

'Open Mind's Mark Of Civilized Man'

Chicago, Ill.—In the course of a lifetime one expresses many opinions. As the years pass on relentlessly, experience and reflection make us discard some views, modify others, bring forth new ones.

One must never be a fanatic. "I may be mistaken," should ever be implied if not expressed by one who gains a little wisdom the closer he or she gets to the grave.

To have an open mind, to listen to other viewpoints, to be humble, to show a kindly nature, to control irrational hatred, to be fair, indicates true refinement. How many headaches humanity could discard, how many joys it could enjoy if every person were truly a civilized specimen!

Appeasement Called High Price To Pay

Dahlonega — Thank God for stubborn men like Chiang, Rhee and Dulles. Had it not been for the stubborn determination of Rhee and Chiang, both Japan and the Phillipines would today be at the mercy of Red China.

This Black Plague was halted at Matsu and Quemoy and then in Korea. Shall we, like Joseph's brethren, sell these simple people to a gang of international cutthroats?

There is a price too dear to pay even for protection from the hydrogen bomb. A bomb can only destroy the body; closed churches, Communist-controlled schools and human slavery can destroy the soul.

Another Georgian Joins the 'Cowards'

Albany—I would like to join the "Cowards' Club" of those who feel that this tragic and needless waste of time and effort in closing the schools could a thousandfold better be directed toward a constructive effort to educate our children toward a liberal and enlightened 1958 viewpoint.

I might say at this point that I feel that I have the right to express myself, as a born-and-bred Georgian who has lived down South my entire life.

I, too, keep quiet because of economic necessity and, I guess, a "When in Rome . . ." attitude.

This terrible situation, whipped on by evil politicians for purely selfish reasons, finds victims among the benighted who can't see three feet beyond their nose and who fall an easy victim to anyone who offers them a little excitement in their dim lives.

We are going backward into the dark ages of bigotry and hate. God must look down on us and shake his head sorrowfully. We must stop this mad thing before it ruins us forever and warps the souls of our helpless children.

So I would like to join the "Cowards." Maybe our club could even change the ugly connotation of the world. There are some "good folk" in it.

"A MEMBER OF THE COWARDS' CLUB."

Georgians Want the Facts About Sales Tax Charges

The proper officials apparently have been sidestepping the issues involved in the reported shortages in the Savannah office of the State Revenue Dept. The Morning News reported in May that a shortage had been discovered in the accounts of a former sales tax auditor and that $12,000 restitution was made by him.

Last week, however, the office of Fulton County Sol. Gen. Paul Webb said that it has uncovered a $28,139 shortage in the State Revenue Dept's Savannah sales and use tax office.

According to Solicitor Webb, the Savannah shortage is a "major theft case" that the revenue department has known about "right along and they've done nothing about it."

Revenue Commissioner T. V. Williams reports that the entire amount of the shortages detected has been recovered.

This affair apparently has been smoothed over to a degree that must be offensive to the ordinary taxpayer. Certain questions immediately come to mind. If there was a "major theft" of $28,139 from the Savannah office, is there not a possibility that other sums have been "misplaced?" Why have the persons or the person responsible for the shortages not been indicted on criminal charges? What kind of superior state officials do we have who permit this kind of graft to be glossed over in such a hush-hush fashion?

As long as such questions as these remain unanswered, we feel that the public should insist on and get a thorough investigation and explanation.

All Those Notes Going to Waste

The smalltown audience had never heard a symphony concert before. The morning after the orchestra came to town, the critics were gathered around the stove down at the store. "Well, Zeke, what did you think of it?" one of them asked the community's sage and wit. "All I got to say," said Zeke, "is, that's a mighty long way to carry a bass drum jist to bank on it onct."

An English humorist must have had that in mind in an essay relayed to me by Maynard Smith, the big city barrister from Cairo, Georgia.

The report published in "Council Compass' gives a summary presented by an efficiency expert after he had studied a symphony concert, looking for ways in which it could be improved.

This is it:

"For considerable periods the four oboe players had nothing to do. The number should be reduced and the work spread more evenly over the whole of the concert, thus eliminating peaks of activity.

"All the 12 violins were playing identical notes; this seems unnecessary duplication. The staff of this section should be drastically cut. If a larger volume of sound is required, it should be obtained by electronic apparatus.

"Much effort was absorbed in the playing of demi-semi-quavers; this seems to be an unnecessary refinement. It is recommended that all notes should be rounded up to the nearest semi-quaver. If this were done it would be possible to use trainees and lower-grade operatives more extensively.

"There seems to be much repetition of some musical passages. Scores should be drastically pruned. No useful purpose is served by the horns repeating a passage which has already been handled by the strings. It is estimated that if all redundant passages were eliminated the whole concert time of two hours could be reduced to 20 minutes and there would be no need for an intermission."

The conductor agreed generally with these recommendations, but expressed the opinion that there might be some falling off in box-office receipts.

There's Still Time To Stop Madness

A professor named Slossen, who professes up at the University of Michigan, has figured out what is wrong with the human race. The trouble is, he says, we do things backward. "We ought not to have invented gunpowder until we had invented the U.N.," he says. "We shouldn't have discovered the secret of the atomic bomb until we had discovered how to get along in a world state."

Professor Slosson doesn't say so, but he implies that if there had been a United Nations a few thousand years ago there would have been no need for that old Chinese, whoever he was, to have mixed sulfur and charcoal and salt petre into an explosive mixture. It would have been helpful in blasting rocks out of the way for the construction of public works, such as schools and hospitals and libraries, but there would have been no need of it for the purpose of propelling bullets.

It is a matter for sorrowful regret, Professor Slosson points out, that so many of the world's great inventions were devised for the purpose of killing other people. The cave man probably first used fire to scorch his neighbor's whiskers, instead of using it to warm his cave and charcoal-broil his dinosaur steaks, and he probably discovered the principle of the wheel by rolling rocks downhill on an enemy.

Atomic fission was discovered and tested purely for the purpose of killing and its main purpose is still the destruction of human beings and all their works. Some day, of course, it will furnish us with a never-ending supply of light and heat and power—but right now it is 10 per cent peaceful in its uses and 90 per cent murderous.

Professor Slosson, though, is not one to wring his hands and cry that civilization would be destroyed if we got into an atomic war. He has been giving the matter some thought and he is of the opinion that not more than one quarter of the human race would be wiped out if the big missiles armed with hydrogen warheads should start dropping out of the sky. Which is a comforting thought.

Unfortunately, though, that one-fourth of the people killed would be made up of Americans, British, French, Russians and Chinese, with the three-fourths surviving consisting of Australian bushmen, Eskimos, African tribesmen living remote from populated centers, desert dwelling Arabs and the inhabitants of Easter Island.

And I don't quite agree that we learned how to kill each other in droves long before we learned to live together as races. We've known how to live in peace for nearly 2,000 years. A very good man, whom we still honor at Christmas time and Easter, but whose words we largely ignore, pointed the way. He didn't say anything about nations uniting or forming into a world federation. He just told us to love one another. If we had just listened to Him we'd have been all right. And it still is not too late.

Man Must Solve Pressing Problem

What is the most pressing problem of our time? It isn't poverty. When the Lord made this earth, He put into it all the resources needed to sustain in comfort every person who would live here. The soil is so fertile it can grow far more than the earth's population can eat. The sea is filled with treasures the like of which mankind has only begun to dream about.

Our most pressing problem is the fact that we have not learned to live together. I do not profess to know the answers to the larger complexities of this world's life. Some day I hope to visit Russia. I would like to walk down the streets of a small town there and see how the Russian people live and what they are really like. But I don't expect that I would ever reach a point of understanding so that I could give the solutions for the problems which seem to exist between our nations.

I read with interest the accounts of the bargaining between the leaders of giant labor unions and industries. I find myself wanting for the laboring man a fair wage and reasonable securities, for the industry an equally fair profit, for the consumer an equally fair price for what he must buy. But I do not profess to know the answers to all the questions involved.

As I read of the strifes between the races of our own beloved land, I grope for the answers but I have not found them all. I know I want every person to have his rightful place but when one begins applying the broad general principles of justice and brotherhood he often becomes confused as to the details of just how it is to work out.

But in seeking the answers to the strifes between men, I do not believe we will ever find the answers until we begin in the right place. The ultimate answer is in the individual man. Turn to the wisest book of all — the Word of the Lord — and see there the progressive ideas of human conduct.

In the early days of Bible history, the law was "eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot, burning for burning, wound for wound, stripe for stripe" (Exodus 21:24-25). But man progresses from brute force to justice, and from justice to love, and from love to mercy, and to the highest attitude which is:

"Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you; that ye may be children of your Father which is in heaven" (Matthew 5:44-45).

During one of the most troublesome moments our nation has yet known, one said, "With malice toward none, with charity toward all, with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right." Others are saying that today and living by it. I dare to believe that some day all men will feel that way. What a great goal to work toward!

Climate Is Fertile For Fast Growth

WASHINGTON—QUESTION: You have said that a great economic opportunity confronts the American people. What do you mean? NELSON ROCKEFELLER, Republican candidate for governor of New York and former assistant to President Eisenhower: I mean this is an era of momentous change, an era of rapidly expanding horizons—educational, economic, scientific, cultural and, let us fervently hope, spiritual.

In another decade or so, at the recent rate of population growth, ours will be a nation of some 200 million people.

Moreover, world population and needs are expanding as rapidly as our own. People everywhere aspire to better ways of living; to peace and security within which to realize the benefits of the new technology.

The United States, the greatest reservoir of capital and technology, as well as symbol of freedom under law, is inevitably in the vanguard of this emerging era of social and economic progress.

QUESTION: Is there any role which the states must play, and how important is it?

ROCKEFELLER: The states are the foundation on which our economic and political well-being rests. Ours is a federal Union. If the states, which are its components, are weak, our Union is weak.

The states are the laboratories of free government.

One of their primary roles is to promote economic growth. The states can do many things to promote growth. They can devise and maintain tax structures that will stimulate initiative and reward effort. They can create an economic climate that will encourage new business, especially small business.

Their objective should be to foster a steadily expanding economy which will provide a rising standard of living and support needed public services at a tolerable tax level.

QUESTION: What measures are most needed to promote economic growth?

ROCKEFELLER: Key elements are the preservation of incentives for productive effort on the part of workers, management and investors; effective control of inflation and emphasis on education, research and training to equip citizens to create, recognize and seize opportunities.

QUESTION: Are we doing enough in the fields of transportation and education?

ROCKEFELLER: No, and I can't envision a time when the answer would be "yes."

Transportation determines where we go physically. Education determines where we go with our minds and hearts. Both are susceptible of infinite improvement.

Events have outmarched our educational system today. I am confident we will catch up, but it will take Herculean efforts.

ment, said, "We of the Catholic Diocese of Atlanta, are especially grieved by the death of His Holiness, because in recognition of the ever-increasing importance and prominence of our great city it was he who established it as a separate diocese two years ago."

The Atlanta bishop said that plans for a Solemn Pontifical Requiem Mass, which will be held in the Cathedral of Christ the King, will be arranged Thursday.

He said each individual Catholic church in the diocese will offer a Mass for the repose of the soul of the Pope on the day that the funeral is held in St. Peter's in Rome.

Bishop Hyland said it was impossible to recall "even a fraction of the Pope's many accomplishments," but he added:

"Suffice it to say the whole purpose of his life was to draw us closer to Jesus Christ, our Divine Saviour, and quite typical of this purpose were the introduction of afternoon and evening masses, and the substantial mitigation of the centuries-old Eucharistic fast."

Bishop Hyland accompanied a pilgrimage from the Diocese of Atlanta to Rome this summer. The group was received in public audience by the Holy Father.

"There were about 10,000 people gathered in the Basilica of St. Peter's," Bishop Hyland said. "The Holy Father came in and addressed the people in all the modern languages."

Msgr. Joseph G. Cassidy, pastor of the Cathedral of Christ the King, also present at the audience, recalled that, "We were very close; about 10 or 12 feet from His Holiness. There were people of many nationalities, and the Holy Father addressed each of them in his native tongue."

Msgr. Cassidy, who also had an audience with the Pope in the Holy Year 1950, said "In June he looked so much stronger and better than he looked in 1950. His eyes and face always had something magnetic about them."

"The Holy Father circulated so widely about the room that some of the members of our group thought that he was going to walk out of the room rather than be carried," said the Rev. Father Michael J. Regan, Officials of the Diocese and another member of the pilgrimage.

The clergymen, speaking in quiet, bereaved tones, all expressed their gratitude at having been privileged to be in audience with the Pope.

Bids on Jail Are Called For Nov. 5

Fulton County's commissioners Wednesday called for bids Nov. 5 on construction of the new county jail, but deferred action in asking bids on a new juvenile court building.

The commissioners held up action on the juvenile court to be built in a two-block area bounded by Washington, Fulton and Clark streets and Capitol avenue because they want to seek federal and state aid on the project.

They made it clear they need the state aid, according to architect's cost estimates, in order to provide a separate wing in the new building to house dependent and neglected children separate from delinquents.

A representative for the firm of John J. Harte Co., architects, expressed little hope that the dependent children wing could be provided with current funds. He said bidding would list this as alternative addition.

Commissioners Carlyle Fraser and Archie Lindsey said they felt it would "be a mistake" to build the new court without the separate quarters for dependent children.

And Commissioner James H. Aldredge said he felt that if the right officials were contacted, federal aid could be gotten for the job since it is to be located in an urban renewal area.

Consulting architect Herbert Rawlins said federal officials had advised him the job could not meet the definition for aid as an urban renewal project.

Judge W. W. Woolfolk also said the county might be able to get aid from the state under its plan to set up five district detention homes for juveniles in the state.

The new buildings will provide quarters for 140 children and completely separates boys and girls. If funds are not available for the separate dependent wing, dependent children would be placed in a separate area on an upper floor.

The commissioners approved the plans for the jail, which is to be built at the Bellwood Public Works camp grounds, but not without some reservations.

HERE FOR CONCERTS

The Met's Mildred Miller An Air Force Wife, Too

By RICHARD E. GRAY

A bright-eyed, young Air Force wife from Colorado Springs, mother of two children, breezed into Atlanta Wednesday to help launch the new Atlanta Symphony concert season Thursday night.

The visitor may not be known to Atlantans as the wife of the head of the department of political science at the new Air Force Academy—which she is.

But she will be remembered as Mildred Miller—one of the most shining stars of the Metropolitan Opera, who has sung often before audiences here.

Miss Miller's "other life" came to light in a downtown restaurant, while she devoured a huge steak and renewed acquaintance with Henry Sopkin, conductor of the Atlanta Symphony, and business manager William C. Herring.

She unfolded a story of real life romance to equal the fables of Hans Christian Andersen.

Her husband is Lt. Col. Wesley W. Posvar. He is a West Point graduate—finishing at the head of his class of 875 in 1946. He is a career officer.

"He's a brain," she said with a broad grin. "But he can't sing."

He and she were high-school classmates in Cleveland, Ohio.

"He was the school politician and I was the singer and actress," she explained. "But we didn't have much to do with each other then. We didn't have time."

They renewed their school acquaintance later in life, and culminated it in Europe—when he was a Rhodes scholar at Oxford and she was studying on a music fellowship in Stuttgart. They were married in the same Stuttgart church in which her mother and father were wed.

They now have a son, 2, and a daughter, 4 ("she loves music") who stay home with daddy while mama takes her warm voice, dark good looks and vibrant personality about the country spreading good music.

Miss Miller revealed her "pet peeve" in the musical realm Wednesday night: unattended, noisy children in the front row. "Children should come to concerts," she declared, "but not by themselves."

Well-known for her male roles in operas, Miss Miller will appear here this time in a formal gown. "I don't want people to forget I'm a woman," she quipped. They won't.

Parolee, Woman Seized In Slaying of Mortician driving. Near Cedartown, he was quoted, Gray started moaning and "She told me we would have to get rid of him."

"She pulled his head over on her lap and I shot him twice," he was quoted.

Officers said Ledford told them after the slaying Mrs. Stanga told him about an isolated section in Arkansas where the body could be safely dumped out. He said they spent the night in a motel and Sunday left the body on a mountain near Van Buren, Arkansas.

Mrs. Stanga earlier gave a statement in which she was quoted as saying that they met Gray Saturday in Decatur, and Ledford pistol-whipped him, knocking him out, and placed him in the trunk of the car.

Mrs. Stanga was quoted that Gray began to moan and they stopped to give him a drink of water. She said Ledford shot Gray and placed the body back in the trunk of the car.

Both at first refused to give their names or a statement, officers said.

Gray was reported kidnaped Saturday while on an errand in Decatur. His body was found late Monday by squirrel hunters on White Mountain near Van Buren, Ark. Ledford and Mrs. Stanga were arrested at Bethany, Okla., in the car Gray had been driving.

Local officers said there were still minor discrepancies in the statements involved in the case. Mrs. Virgil G. Gray Sr., mother of the slain man, said he left home at 6 p.m. Saturday to go to a grocery store and was to have returned for dinner.

If Gray had an appointment to meet Mrs. Stanga he said nothing about it, officers said.

Ledford was released Sept. 30 from the U.S. Penitentiary after serving a five-year sentence on charges of theft of government property, officers said. He had spent 17 of his 43 years behind bars on charges ranging from manslaughter to forgery.

Records in the state pardon and parole board show that Ledford had served 10 years of a 35-year state sentence when he was released to federal authorities in May, 1955. He was granted a "conditional release" from the federal pen three days before Gray was kidnaped, savagely beaten, shot and robbed.

Williams Vows Full Help For Chatham Tax Probe

Revenue Commissioner T. V. Williams Sr. said Wednesday the Chatham County Grand Jury would have his "full cooperation" in its investigation of a $28,139 shortage in the Savannah sales tax office.

However, William said that "in the main" all the information that he could provide the grand jury would be "hearsay" based on his oral conversations with auditors and other sales tax personnel.

But he said that any personnel of his department that could give the jury information it is seeking "will be available."

Chatham County Solicitor Joseph Ryan had written Williams to request that he appear before the grand jury to "give us the necessary information upon which an indictment may be based."

Williams disclosed recently that the discrepancy had occurred in the Savannah sales tax office. One official resigned from the office seven months ago, and Williams said full restitution of the $28,000 had been made.

Earlier, Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook called on the bonding companies for $1,249 that Williams reported had been allegedly paid in sales taxes to revenue employes but which had not been accounted for.

Cook is asking $1,049.21 claimed to have been paid by McLeod Motor Co. of Macon to the late Albert Dozier, former sales tax director, and $200 claimed to have been paid by Rufus Paulk of Ambrose, Ga., to J. B. McGregor.

McGregor, former Douglas regional sales tax director, was one of three ex-revenue employes who were indicted last week by the Fulton County Grand Jury.

100 Tax Jobs Hit by Swain

Director E. L. Swain of the State Merit System estimated Wednesday that about 100 employes are still on the Revenue department payroll who are not qualified under merit regulations.

Swain made the estimate after Revenue Commissioner T. V. Williams Sr. dismissed 46 employes because they were not qualified.

Swain said most of the remaining 100 revenue employes who have not received Merit System appointments had failed to pass the examination for their jobs.

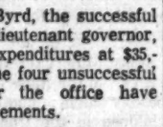
Williams said he expected to have most of the 1,200 employes of his department in compliance with merit regulations during the payroll period of Oct. 15 to Oct. 31.

No. 19: Know Your County

Calhoun Named for One Of 5 Greatest Senators

Calhoun County, in southwest Georgia, was created from parts of Baker and Early counties in 1854, the 111th in order of organization. It was named for John C. Calhoun, noted senator from South Carolina who later became Vice President of the United States. In 1957, he was selected as one of the nation's five greatest senators.

Morgan, the county seat, is generally credited with being named for Gen. Daniel Morgan of Revolutionary fame. There is a not too well authenticated report that it was named for a Morgan family that lived in the area.



The county covers 289 square miles and ranks 105th in size. Calhoun County has a population of 7,500 and Morgan has a population of 304 (1957 estimates). Calhoun ranks 113rd in population (1950 census). Other towns are Arlington, named after Gen. Robert E. Lee's home on the Potomac River, and Edison and Dickey.

There were 690 farms in the county in 1954. Peanuts are the most important crop and Calhoun, in 1955, ranked 10th in the state in peanut production when a third of the county's crop land was in peanuts. During World War II, more than a half of the land was in peanuts. Calhoun County farmers have been turning their former peanut land into pastures. Other crops are cotton, corn, truck crops and pecans.

Highways running through Calhoun County are Ga. 37, 45, 62, 55, 45 and 41.

Tomorrow: Camden County.

$137,000 Spent by Vandiver

Lt. Gov. Vandiver spent $137,000 in his successful bid for governor in last month's primary, records in the comptroller general's office showed Wednesday.

Under state law, all candidates for state office must file a report of their campaign expenditures within 20 days after the election. But Vandiver was the only candidate for governor to do so.

According to Vandiver's sworn statement, he spent $117,947 for radio, television, newspaper and other advertising and printing; $1,500 for his entrance fee; $9,371 for secretarial help; and $8,181 for travel and lodging.

He said the entire amount was contributed by Vandiver-for-Governor clubs, friends and supporters.

Garland T. Byrd, the successful candidate for lieutenant governor, reported his expenditures at $35,550. None of the four unsuccessful candidates for the office have filed their statements.

Comptroller General Zack D. Cravey reported expenditures of $21,106 in his hotly contested reelection fight. He said $2,900 of this amount was from his personal funds and the balance was contributed by supporters.

Thousands Drawn by 'Fair' Skies

Perfect fair weather continued to lure thousands of Georgians to the Southeastern fairgrounds Wednesday.

Highlighting fair competition Wednesday was the annual Southeastern Aberdeen-Angus Show, the State 4-H Sheep Shearing Contest and a stunning orchid show sponsored by the Atlanta Orchid Society.

Fred Wilson of Atlanta and Duluth exhibited the grand champion female in the Angus show, while Bray's Isle Plantation of Yemassee, S.C., showed the reserve champion. The grand champion bull is owned jointly by Kefauver Brothers of Knoxville, Tenn., and Henderson Brothers of Cohutta.

Bray's Isle copped a second top prize with the reserve champion bull.

In the colorful orchid show, which drew thousands of admiring visitors, Adm. and Mrs. Philip G. Stokes and Rufus L. Suggs, all of Atlanta, won top prizes in competition among private growers.

Winners among commercial exhibitors included the Dos Pueblos Orchid Co., Goleta, Calif.; Alberts and Mirkel Brothers, Jacksonville, Fla.; Dr. and Mrs. Vincent Bell, Atlanta; Dick Timmons, Fairview Flower Shop, Atlanta; Col. and Mrs. Herman Lambert, Atlanta, and Mrs. R. J. Race, Atlanta.

White Crosses at Side of Roads Will Mark State's Crash Deaths

The Georgia Department of Public Safety plans to erect three-foot high white crosses along the state's highways to mark places where fatal traffic wrecks have occurred.

The plan has been approved by the State Public Safety Board headed by Gov. Griffin. The aim is to remind drivers to be careful at the wheel.

The markers will be painted white and carry the grim reminder "Killed Here" with the number of deaths at each spot painted with reflective glass beads so they may be seen and read at night.

The crosses will be erected along the highways at the scene of every traffic fatality that has occurred in rural Georgia this year. U.S. 41 will be the first highway to be covered in the project.

GM Walkouts In 8th Day Here

Talks at all but one General Motors plant here have been recessed until Saturday and some 5,500 striking United Auto Workers will continue to stay off the job Thursday for the eighth day.

UAW bargaining committee members will meet with officials of the Buick-Oldsmobile-Pontiac plant at Doraville at 10 a.m. Thursday.

UAW and Fisher Body officials conferred for the first time Wednesday but no settlement of local issues was reached during the four-hour session.

ONE OF THE LAST PICTURES OF POPE PIUS XII
Photograph Was Made Oct. 1 at Castel Gandolfo

Pope Spoke Out Often for Good Will to All

VATICAN CITY (AP)—No pope ever before spoke out so frequently and on so many subjects as did Pius XII.

None before him had the facilities that were afforded to him by science. He frequently turned to radio and, in later years, television to reach distant countries. Some of his major speeches, for example his annual Christmas messages that emphasized the subject of peace, were broadcast in as many as 26 languages.

He was the first pontiff to appear on television.

Some of his words on various subjects included:

COEXISTENCE—"Either it (coexistence) will raise itself to a coexistence in the fear of God, and thence to a truly peaceful living together, inspired and protected by the divine moral order, or else it will shrivel more into a frozen paralysis of international life, the grave dangers of which are even now foreseeable." (Christmas 1954).

ANTICOMMUNISM—"We again warn Christians of the industrial age . . . against being satisfied with an anticommunism founded on the slogan and the defense of a liberty which is devoid of content. Rather we urge them to build up a society in which man's security rests on the moral order." (Christmas 1954).

NUCLEAR ENERGY—"The use of this enormous energy for peaceful purposes is the object of careful and continuous investigation to which is given our blessing together with the approval and the congratulations of every honorable individual and of all civilized peoples." (Easter 1956).

EFFECTS OF NUCLEAR WAR—"This is the spectacle offered to the terrified gaze as a result of such use (of nuclear weapons): Entire cities, even the largest and the richest in art and history, wiped out. A pall of death over the pulverized ruins, covering countless victims with limbs burned, twisted and scattered, while others groan in their death agony. Meanwhile the specter of the radioactive cloud hinders the survivors from giving any help, and inexorably advances to snuff out any remaining life." (Christmas 1955).

COMMUNISM — "We reject communism as a social system by virtue of Christ's doctrine, and we have a particular obligation to proclaim the fundamental principles of the natural law. For the same reason we also reject the opinion that the Christian ought today to see communism as a phenomenon or a stage in the passage of history, one of the necessary 'moments' as it were of its evolution, and, consequently, to accept it as if decreed by Divine Providence." (Christmas 1956).

COLONIALISM—"Let not those peoples be denied a fair and progressive political freedom and hindered in its pursuit. On the other hand, Western peoples, especially those of Europe, should not, in the face of such problems, remain passive, in futile regret over the past or in mutual recrimination over colonialism." (Christmas 1955).

LABOR UNIONS — "No true Christian can find fault if you unite in strong organizations to defend your rights—while remaining aware of your duties— and to arrive at an improvement in your conditions of life. You are acting fully in conformity with the church's social teaching when, by all means morally permissible, you vindicate your just rights." (Speech to Italian workers June 28, 1955).

COMMUNICATIONS — "The combined action of the press, radio, movies and television succeeds in fashioning the conscience of the individual without his knowing it. . . . It weighs on youth which can be easily influenced, penetrates to remote country areas and even the most intelligent, although better armed, do not escape its attack." (Letter published July 21, 1955).

PRESS — "Strive to become daily more valiant heralds of truth, fearless defenders of what is right, and wise pioneers of a true peace." (Address May 21, 1953).

ON MOTHER AND CHILD—"Thus for example, to save the life of the mother is a very noble aim; but the direct killing of the child as a means to the end is not permissible. The direct destruction of the so-called 'life without value' born or not yet born, practiced a few years ago in large numbers cannot be justified in any manner." (Address to midwives, Oct. 29, 1951).

NATURAL CHILDBIRTH — So-called natural, painless childbirth in which no artificial means is used, but the mother's natural forces are called into action: "Is this method morally irreproachable: The answer, which must take into account the object, end and motive of the method, is enunciated briefly: 'Considered it itself, it contains nothing that can be criticized from the moral point of view.'" (Address to doctors Jan. 8, 1956).

ARTIFICIAL INSEMINATION—The Pope, speaking partly in Latin, said that the so-called 'test-tube' process must "be rejected as immoral and absolutely illicit." (Address to World Congress on Fertility and Sterility, May 19, 1956).

PEACE—"Nothing is lost with peace. Everything may be with war. Let man return to understanding. Let negotiations begin." (Radio address Aug. 24, 1939 before outbreak of World War II).

TOTALITARIANISM — "It is incompatible with a true and healthy democracy. Like a dangerous bacillus, it poisons the community of nations. . . . It represents a constant danger of war." (Christmas 1945).

WAR CRIMES—"Who then demands the expiation of crimes with the just punishment of criminals in proportion to their crimes must have every care not himself to do that which he reproves in others as a sin and a crime." (Christmas message, 1945).

CAPITAL AND LABOR — "The opinion, unhappily too widespread, that between them there is an irreducible opposition to divergent interests is erroneous and sad in its consequences." (To Italian Catholic employers, May 7, 1949).

COLOR BAR AND RACISM—"One knows too well, alas, to what excesses racial pride and racial hate can lead. The church is forever opposed with energy to (these excesses) whether they consist of attempts at genocide, or practices inspired by what is called the 'color bar.'" (Address to an International Congress on Blood Transfusion, Sept. 10, 1958).

POLITICS — Prayer the Pope composed for Catholic parliamentarians and politicians says: "May we never lack in loyalty to our people, faith in the principles we profess and elevation of the spirit above corruption and evil interest." (Prayer published Jan. 28, 1958.)

Pius XII Was Closer to U.S. Than Any Pope in History

WASHINGTON (AP)—Pope Pius XII had closer ties with the United States than any other pope in history.

He was the first head of the church who had ever visited this country — in 1936, before he ascended the papal throne. More than half the church's U.S. hierarchy, including five cardinals, were appointed during his reign.

In 1946, Pope Pius XII canonized the first U.S. citizen raised to sainthood, Mother Frances Xavier Cabrini. She died in Chicago in 1917.

And no pope in history received so many Americans at the Vatican, hundreds of thousands of them, from dignitaries to soldiers and sailors to ordinary tourists.

These Americans saw him not only in all his pomp and dignity but many thousands chatted with him, received from his hands the papal blessed gifts.

The National Catholic Welfare Conference recalls that the touring Harlem Globe Trotters basketball team visited the pontiff at Castel Gandolfo. The players, all Negroes, displayed their special brand of trick basketball passing to the tune of "Sweet Georgia Brown."

The Pope laughed and applauded. The players, out of the corners of their eyes, caught sight of the papal white slipper tapping out the beat.

IKE AIDE—WASHINGTON — Gerald D. Morgan, 49, was named Wednesday by President Eisenhower as his principal deputy assistant. Morgan, who was a White House special counsel, will serve under Wilton B. Persons.

Grady Plans Autopsy in Rabies Death

showed the animal had died of rabies.

Cleveland said his wife took the first of her shots Wedensday after doctors advised the injections as a precautionary measure although neither was bitten by the dog.

The death of Ray, if it is attributed to rabies, would be the third reported case of rabies in humans in the nation this year, according to the U.S. Public Health Service's Communicable Disease Center here.

Still another Atlantan—W. E. Evans, 57, of 952 Curran St., NW—Wednesday was faced with the possibility of taking antirabies shots after he was bitten by a dog Tuesday night in the 700 block of Curran street.

In Hapeville, George D. Dorsey, 46, of 247 Maple St., Wednesday was searching for "a white shaggy dog" which he said bit him last Thursday during an inoculation of dogs at the Hapeville Health Center.

Other developments on the rabies scene Wednesday included the revelation by health authorities that three-fourths of Fulton County—the southwest, southeast and northwest quadrants—has been placed under rabies quarantine because of the fact that 37 cases of rabid dogs have been confirmed in Fulton this year.

Health officials pointed out the law requires animal owners in quarantined areas to keep their pets confined to the premises.

Billy Graham

Parent Has Stewardship Of Child

QUESTION: We are the parents of a retarded child. He takes more time and care than any normal one, and we have been advised to commit him to an institution. What troubles us is our spiritual responsibility. Is it possible to lead such a one to Christ, or is he beyond any reasonable hope?—G. A.

ANSWER: You have been given a severe trial, and I do not suppose anyone can give you the best answer who has not passed through this experience. You will find comfort from Dale Evans' book, "Angel Unawares." I am confident God will hold that child responsible only to the degree that he can understand.

But if God has sent that child to you, it must be that there is a hidden purpose for you to discover. Once you have discovered that purpose, it will make a contribution to your own life and you may have a definite ministry to the child. You have a stewardship. This burden is similar to many others, and the Bible says, "Tribulation worketh patience, and patience experience, and experience hope and hope maketh not ashamed." (Roman 8:3). As Christians we should accept all such tribulations as one of the means God uses to accomplish His purpose in us.

LOOK WHAT'S HAPPENED TO PONTIAC—the industry's hottest engineering team changed the very foundation of automotive design to bring you advances no other car can offer!

Those exclusive Wide-Track Wheels sparked a chain reaction of wonderful new ideas: You can see the trim, tailored new look . . . it's inches lower without sacrificing roominess or road clearance. You'll discover this beauty handles city corners and clings to country curves in a way conventional narrow-gauge cars can't hope to imitate. And the ride . . . the miraculous freedom from sway, dive and bounce . . . this is a wonderful new experience in buoyant travel that you won't believe—until you try it.

But there's still more to the new Pontiac to stamp it as the big change for '59:

Vista-lounge interiors with full 360-degree visibility . . . seats actually wider than a sofa . . . Air-Cooled True-Contour Brakes for smooth, effortless control stop after stop after stop.

The industry's most advanced V-8, Pontiac's Tempest 420, gives you spectacular new responsiveness—with sound and vibration reduced to a point you'll find hard to believe and there's a new companion power plant, the Tempest 420E, that delivers phenomenal extra mileage—and does it on regular octane gas!

And there's lots, lots more to make your first inspection a truly revealing experience. Come in and see why no other car can possibly be so new as the new Pontiac—three great series: the magnificent Bonneville, the dramatic Star Chief and the brilliant new Catalina.

2 Great New Engines

If you love action—you get the liveliest on wheels with the bigger, more powerful 389 cu. in. Tempest 420 V-8, acclaimed by automotive experts as America's most advanced power plant. Unique new mounting design virtually eliminates vibration and noise. Available with 2-barrel, 4-barrel and Tri-Power (6-barrel) carburetion.

If you want the accent on economy, choose Pontiac's new Tempest 420E. You get a deep-chested V-8 with the savings of a much smaller power plant. In extensive tests this phenomenal new V-8 actually delivered better mileage than many smaller cars with so-called "economy engines" . . . and it uses regular fuel—saves up to 20% on gas bills!

Air-Cooled True-Contour Brakes

High efficiency cooling flanges in the air stream dissipate heat far faster . . . 39% bigger drums absorb quick-stop heat . . . 25% thicker lining lasts far longer . . . 10% greater lining contact plus true-contour fit of lining and drum mean precision action, less pedal effort. The industry's largest front cylinders give better front and rear brake balance for more effective high speed stops.

Seats Wider than a Sofa

Plus plenty of leg and head room. Pontiac's living-room comfort lets you change position naturally . . . choose the way you like to sit—not the way you have to! Pontiac seats offer still other new comfort advantages over the average sofa. They're wider, have higher backs and slant downward at the rear to give maximum support under the knees for safer, more comfortable driving.

those Involved, according to the statement.

As did the first indictments, the new one charges that Ray and Coleman "being then and there employees and servants of the State of Georgia, to wit: employees in the Department of Revenue, did embezzle" the sums of money listed in the five counts.

They are jointly charged with taking $53,078.73 on March 30 of this year in count one, $22,727.67 on May 30 of this year in count two, $6,269.25 also on May 30 of this year in count three, $2,520 on March 15, 1957 in count four, and $1,100 on Jan. 15, 1957, in count five.

Cadenhead and Webb also revealed for the first time the names of most of the taxpayers whose accounts were involved in the embezzlements. They pointed out that since names of witnesses who testified before the grand jury had been supplied to the defendants, their identity is now "no secret."

The $53,000 amount in count one came from the account of Austin Supermarket in Atlanta, the $22,000 amount from Cordell Green Motor Co. of Dublin and the $6,000 amount from the Union Furniture Exchange of Atlanta account.

Cadenhead said he did not want to release at this time the names of accounts involved in counts four and five because "we are still working on them."

In the first two indictments, the accounts involved were Wooten Oil Co., $3,900; Douglas Neon Sign Co., $1,100; Fitzgerald Motor Co., $1,500, and Woodcock Grocery Co. of Jesup, $900, they said.

disclosed that he and Dr. T. J. Raney, president of the corporation seeking to establish private schools to replace Little Rock's closed ones, are preparing thousands of letters asking for money. They are to be mailed in about three days, on the governor's stationery, to persons who have written or wired Faubus urging him to continue to uphold segregation in the school.

Officials of Tennessee's Anderson County discussed with presidential aides the financial problem raised by dynamite blasts that did an estimated $300,000 to integrated Clinton High School early this week.

After the session, it was announced that an as yet undetermined amount of federal aid would be extended under existing law permitting assistance to schools attended by children of parents working at federal installations. Some children of employes at the Oak Ridge plant of the Atomic Energy Commission attend Clinton. Classes now are being conducted in an unused elementary school at Oak Ridge.

U.S. Firms Purchase Soviet Oil in Finland

HELSINKI, Finland (UPI) — Two foreign oil companies operating in Finland, Shell and Gulf, have signed an agreement with the Finnish government to purchase 450,000 tons of crude oil from Russia, it was reported Wednesday. The agreement meant the companies would decrease Western oil imports by a similar amount.

Pius XII Is Dead; World Mourns

three weeks — after a nine-day period of mourning.

All the popes for the last 400 years have come from Italy. The feeling at the Vatican has been that this likely will be the case again even though Italians no longer command a majority in the College of Cardinals.

STAMINA FINALLY YIELDS

The Pope's valiant heart, grieved by years of war and the onslaughts of Communist atheism, finally gave way after a period of more than 12 hours in which doctors despaired of saving him.

In 1953 and 1954 his stamina had overcome serious illnesses, but this time his age and the two strokes affecting his circulatory system were too heavy a burden.

He had spent a strenuous summer at this papal summer estate.

Last week he had a recurrence of gastritis and hiccups, accompaniments of the illness that took him to the verge of death in December 1954.

The Pope showed some improvement, and last Friday warmly welcomed Francis Cardinal Spellman, heading a pilgrimage of 600 Americans. Doctors continued to urge him to rest, and asked him to conserve his strength by not talking at one audience. He continued active, however, and held an audience Sunday.

That night, while being treated for his stomach ailment, he suddenly weakened. The first stroke came Monday morning.

Slowly he rallied. He emerged from a coma and shook off partial paralysis. Medical bulletins reflected his progress.

CARDIAC COLLAPSE

But another stroke Wednesday, 47 hours after the first, wiped out the gains. A few hours later the physicians reported:

"The Pope is suffering a grave cardiac pulmonary collapse."

This meant he could no longer breathe effectively due to a breakdown of the functions of the heart and its circulatory system, with involvement of the lungs.

He lapsed into unconsciousness as the sun set Wednesday night and then he lay for hours breathing heavily in the bare white sickroom.

A Mass for the dying was celebrated in a chapel next to the sickroom just after midnight.

Steadily, the Pope's blood pressure fell and his temperature rose. It was 102 Wednesday afternoon. Early Thursday it reached 107.6.

Approximately 30 persons were gathered around the death bed. A choked, rasping sound came from the Pope's lips upon the approach of death. Dr. Antonio Gasbarrini put a stethoscope to the Pope's chest. He felt for a pulse, turned around and said:

"E morto"—he is dead.

Embassies and legations of about 50 nations accredited to the Vatican were immediately notified of the Pope's death.

So were cardinals throughout the world.

Directed by their dean, French-born Cardinal Tisserant, cardinals in Rome will gather as soon as possible upon procedure for the "interregnum," the period from the death of the Pope to the election of a new pontiff.

One of their first tasks will be to arrange for the nine-day period of solemn mourning that will be followed by burial in the Vatican grottos. The Pope's sepulcher will be near the spot where church records say St. Peter, considered by Roman Catholics as the first pope, was buried.

The pope who died Thursday was in many respects one of the most remarkable men the 20th century has known. There is no doubt the church will count him among its greatest popes.

FIGHTER FOR PEACE

Many terms were used to describe him. He was the "Pope of Peace," a fighter for an end to war. He was the "modern Pope," the first to use an airplane, the first to know the United States firsthand, the first to use a typewriter and an electric razor.

But first of all he was a pope of the people. He was accessible as no other pontiff before him, receiving more than 10-million persons in audience.

He spoke out forcefully and frequently on the world's problems, ranging from war to questions of family life.

ALTAR BOY AT 10

Pius XII was born Eugenio Pacelli in Rome March 2, 1876. A grandfather was a papal official who founded L'Osservatore Romano, the Vatican newspaper; his father was a consistorial advocate who pleaded canon law before church courts, and Eugenio was an altar boy at 10. He was ordained to the priesthood at 23 and became an assistant at the Vatican.

He was consecrated a bishop in 1917 and created a cardinal in 1929. The College of Cardinals elected him pope in 1939 on his 63rd birthday.

Associated Press Wirephoto
AS CARDINAL IN 1930
Later Papal Secretary

He chose "Opus Justitiae Pax (Peace is the Work of Justice)" as the motto of his reign. His first major pronouncement, the day after his election, called on world leaders to halt the course of war.

"Nothing is lost with peace, all may be with war," he said, just six months before the start of World War II. Again and again in the terrible years that followed, he returned to this theme.

World War II left millions of Catholics under Communist rule.

Despite its travail the church claimed 50-million communicants behind the Iron Curtain. These, added to the 468 millions recently estimated by the Vatican for countries outside the Iron Curtain, bring the total to more than a half billion.

In World War I he helped draw up Pope Benedict XV's peace plan. As Vatican undersecretary of state he went to Munich in 1917 and tried to get Germany's Kaiser Wilhelm to agree to peace. The mission failed but he remained in Germany and became the Vatican's first envoy to Germany after the 1918 armistice.

Called back to Rome in 1919, he was made a cardinal by Pius XI and named Vatican secretary of state in 1930. He also became papal chamberlain and headed the church's interim government when Pius XI died. The 62 cardinals who gathered in the Sistine Chapel elected him pope March 2, 1939.

Anjette's Threat To 'Kill' Told

out at the house and that's the way arsenic got in her blood.' "

The witness said a letter, purported to be from Mrs. Lyles, was handed him by Anjette. He read it twice and, as he recalled, the communication said Anjette had nothing to do with "little Ben's death or Mrs. Lyles' death and stated in a rather indirect way, I thought, that Mrs. Lyles was responsible for those deaths."

SPOKE "AS FRIEND"

Phillips said he spoke to Anjette "as a good friend" and described her as a person who "had a tendency to talk too much and told me some things I thought stretched the truth a little."

On direct examination, he testified that the signature on the bottom of the letter looked like that of Mrs. Lyles Sr., whose handwriting he knew. But in a dramatic rebuttal exchange, Prosecutor H. T. O'Neal Jr. asked him what he thought of the signature.

"I formed the opinion it was not valid," the witness said.

"A forgery?" demanded O'Neal.

"Yes, sir!" said the witness.

HANDWRITING EXPERT

While Anjette and Joe Neal Gabbart were on a prehoneymoon trip to Texas a letter bearing Gabbart's name was dispatched to the Veterans Administration to learn if his $10,000 National Service Insurance policy was still in effect, a prosecution witness testified late Wednesday. The state indicated it will prove by Miss Mary Beacom, State Crime Lab handwriting expert, that the signature was forged. Miss Beacom is expected to take the stand Thursday.

Ivan Paragin of the Veterans Administration record department in Atlanta presented to the jury a letter written on the letterhead of the Lone Star Motel and Grill on Highway 80 in Pecos, Tex., asking about the insurance on June 21, 1955. Four days later Anjette and Gabbart were married in Mexico.

The same witness testified that four months later the policy was changed to make Anjette the beneficiary.

Another unexpected witness at the afternoon session was Miss Latrelle West, secretary to the sheriff of Bibb County who was assigned to guard Anjette in her hospital room the evening she was arrested for murder.

"WAS NOT UPSET"

Miss West told the jury Anjette "didn't seem to be upset, she laughed and joked," and said she did not see why they were "picking on her" because she did not get any money out of the deaths of Ben Lyles Jr. or Joe Neal Gabbart.

The witness said Anjette mulled over the matter of whether she would collect double indemnity insurance on the lives of her two husbands if she were cleared and bragged to her that "all the brass hats in Macon would be behind her."

Miss West testified that Anjette's lawyer, William Buffington, who is heading her defense, called on his client and told her he had talked to news reporters "and she (Anjette) asked him what he said and he said he had told them that her statement was, 'I have committed no crime,' and that's what she should say from then on."

MYSTERY LETTER

Miss West said Anjette also discussed the mystery letter which she predicted would clear her and said it was written in Mrs. Lyles' handwriting and she had found it after the death of the older woman.

"She stated she had a letter that would clear her from all these charges," Miss West said. "She said it would burn them up."

Two witnesses, William F. Hutcheson and Billy Dean Davis, both husbands of waitresses who worked in Anjette's restaurant, testified that they heard Anjette threaten to kill her daughter Marcia.

Hutcheson on cross-examination unexpectedly injected the first mention of voodoo into the murder trial by telling of seeing candles burning in Anjette's restaurant—a green one for good luck and a red one for romance.

Defense attorney Buffington mystified observers by apparently deliberately going into the matter of the black magic which has not been mentioned by the state thus far in the case, beyond a slight reference to airline pilot Bob Frank's picture which was found in Anjette's room pinned to her mattress in a sock.

CANDLE BURNING

"Did Mrs. Lyles ever discuss good luck potions or love potions with you?" Buffington asked the witness.

"Well, one night me and my wife and Mrs. Lyles were back in the kitchen and a red candle was burning," Hutcheson began. "Mr. Frank was supposed to come that night. The candle was jumping and kinda blazing up now and then. Don't ask me to explain that, it was just doing it. Mrs. Lyles looked at the candle and said, 'He's getting nearer,' or something like that."

Hutcheson testified that Anjette once jerked Marcia by the arm and called her a "little Lyles-looking - - -." He said on another occasion he had seen her take the child back in the kitchen and had later found the child crying, but under cross-examination he admitted there had been times when he would have spanked the child himself if she had been his.

Davis, who said he was present on the same occasion, said he heard Marcia ask her mother for 25 cents to buy a present and Anjette "told her she would kill her if it was the last thing she ever did."

"Did you see that child do anything worse than ask for a quarter?" O'Neal asked.

"No, sir," said the witness.

William N. George, a representative of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., identified a $10,000 policy which he said had been taken out on the life of Gabbart and a canceled check which had been issued to Anjette after Gabbart's death.

He said the policy was sold by Anjette's brother, William Donovan. The original application was for $20,000 but was amended, George testified. He did not know by whom.

Rep.-elect Phillips also testified that he was ill in the hospital at the time Gabbart was confined there in his last illness and that Anjette came to him there and asked him about making a will for her husband.

He said he put on his robe and slippers and went down to Gabbart's room but the young airline pilot was in such acute distress from a scaly rash around his ears and eyes and kept scratching so frantically that he left.

Phillips said Anjette was spending the nights at the hospital on a cot in Gabbart's room at the time.

Some months before the senior Mrs. Lyles' death, the lawyer testified, Anjette brought up the matter of a will for her mother-in-law during a crowded coffee session in her restaurant. He said Anjette told him Mrs. Lyles was "against a will, didn't want one, wouldn't make one."

It was on that occasion that she showed him the bankbooks listing Mrs. Lyles Sr.'s savings at between $80,000 and $90,000.

Earlier, as the gruesome artifacts of death passed in grisly review, one juror grew ill and was excused from the trial, leaving 13 jurors to hear the evidence against the voodoo-minded Mrs. Lyles.

Whether the medical testimony with photographs of dead bodies in their coffins and detailed discussion of the tests made on them for arsenic was responsible, the court did not say, but Juror H. D. Murrell, tire company manager, became ill at the morning session. He was excused at the first recess and replaced by the first alternate, Mark W. Carraway Sr., an electrician.

Meanwhile, crowds of women pressed into the second-floor lobby of the courthouse and one—a young pregnant woman—fainted in the crush. She was revived and remained on with those who hoped for a chance at a seat in the courtroom or a glimpse of the silver-haired defendant as she traveled the short distance between the courtroom door and the elevator to the jail. (Anjette's third day costume was a dark purple, full-skirted dress with dainty touches of white ruching at the neck and the sleeves.)

Inside the courtroom the details of Marcia Lyles' and Joe Neal Gabbart's last agonized illnesses and the condition of the bodies of the other alleged murder victims poured out in the matter-of-fact tones of three medical men.

U.S. Stops Escorting Convoys, Pushes Permanent Cease-Fire

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States announced Wednesday a halt in its Formosa Strait convoy operations and readied an effort to make Red China's cease-fire a permanent one. The announcement was foreshadowed by a Peiping radio broadcast noting an absence of U.S. warships and aircraft in the Quemoy area.

The State department said, however, that the convoying "will be resumed forthwith to the extent necessary" if Red China again starts bombarding Quemoy.

Officials here thought it likely the Communist guns would remain silent.

Reports were that Soviet diplomats in Europe were saying Red China would extend its cease-fire beyond the seven days originally fixed by Peiping. The week expires Sunday.

On Friday, U.S. Ambassador Jacob Beam will again confer at Warsaw with Red Chinese Ambassador Wang Ping-nan.

Secretary of State Dulles has promised that U.S.-China policy might change if the situation for which it was designed changes. He has said it would be foolish, if there was a dependable cease-fire, for Nationalist China to maintain its garrisons of 120,000 troops on Quemoy, Matsu and other islands lying along the China Coast.

The implication was the United States might seek to persuade Nationalist President Chiang Kai-shek to thin out his coastal island forces.

Butler Denies Linking Faubus to Red Line

HAYS, Kan. (AP)—Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler said Wednesday he had labeled Gov. Orval E. Faubus an unworthy Democrat but denied he had accused the Arkansan of abetting Communist propaganda.

"We completely repudiate everything Faubus has said concerning the integration issue and many of his statements have carried the tinge of fascist totalitarianism," Butler said.

Earlier published reports quoted Butler as saying he believed Faubus was "an aider and abbettor of Communist propaganda" through his stand against school integration.

Butler spoke at the University of Wichita Wednesday morning and later talked informally with reporters and students.

He said possibly some of his hearers had misunderstood his statements concerning Faubus.

Butler said he was asked if he thought the delegates from Old South states to the 1960 Democratic convention might walk out if the party came out with a strongly worded platform plank on integration.

"I replied that it was quite possible some of the delegates might walk out but it wouldn't mean Democratic defeat in the presidential election," the chairman said. "President Truman showed it was not necessary to carry all the solid South or even New York to win the presidency."

But, Butler said, he did not make any statement saying the entire Deep South eventually would leave the Democratic party.

"I don't believe it will," he said.

Burglars Haul Off Safe with $2,769

A safe containing $2,769 was stolen from an Auburn avenue, NE, real estate firm, police said Wednesday.

Patrolmen J. D. Bryan and R. J. Walker said thieves broke through burglar bars on a window at the Alexander-Calloway Co., 208 Auburn Ave. They said the safe was believed to have been hauled away on a truck.

UP, THEN DOWN—ALAMOGORDO, N.M.—An Air Force scientific balloon, shown taking off here, landed Wednesday night after carrying its pilot, Lt. Clifton McClure of Anderson, S.C., to 99,600 feet. McClure kept in contact via radio with the ground and relayed scientific observations made at the fringe of space. The end of the exploration came unexpectedly. Earlier, it had hoped the balloon would reach a height of 100,000 feet.

Episcopals To Debate Segregation

By GEORGE CORNELL

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Clashing resolutions concerning racial segregation were before the Episcopal Church's Triennial General Convention Wednesday.

One defends segregation as being within the realm of Christian beliefs. The other condemns it as a violation of the faith.

The contradictory statements were introduced without discussion and referred to a committee. Action on the matter won't come until later.

At present, the church nationally has a policy of opposing segregation. But the new moves here pointed up the regional differences —apparently of a minority—within it.

B. Allston Moore, a Charleston, S.C., attorney, offered the resolution that segregation can be squared with Christian teaching. It said:

"A sincere belief in the rightness of segregation is not incompatible in the belief of the dignity of all men and their equality before God."

On the other hand, a resolution backed by a group of clergymen who met at Eaton, N.H., last month, called race discrimination "an abomination ... a failure of Christian love."

Moore said he was pressing his resolution to point up "the utter incongruity of the position" the church has taken nationally favoring integration.

The resolution says that christians for generations have accepted segregation as being "in the best interests of both races" up until the U.S. Supreme Court outlawed it in schools in 1954.

But now many clergymen "condemn as evil ... what they formerly approved or at least condoned."

Graham Likely To Add Week to Charlotte Drive

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP)—Evangelist Billy Graham said Wednesday night that "in all likelihood" his Charlotte crusade will be extended a week beyond its scheduled closing Oct. 19.

The crusade opened Sept. 21 and was scheduled to run four weeks through Oct. 19. Fifteen meetings through Tuesday night have drawn well over 200,000 to the city Coliseum.

In his 16th sermon Wednesday night, which drew 12,000 to the Coliseum, Graham declared the "unpardonable sins" are sins committed against the Holy Spirits.

The evangelist said the nature of the Holy Spirit is "the most neglected subject in the church today," and that the greatest need in today's churches "is not new organizations on a new method but members who have been filled with the Holy Spirit."

And not until the churches return to "recognition of the Lordship of the Holy Spirit can we expect pentecostal power and results," said Graham.

Army Rule In Pakistan Defended

Chaos Averted, Says Gen. Khan

(Copyright 1958, The New York Times Co.)

KARACHI, Pakistan—The new supreme commander of Pakistan's armed forces told the country Wednesday night that he had taken power with great reluctance and in the belief that the only alternative was chaos and a collapse.

Gen. Mohammed Ayub Khan, named late Tuesday night by President Iskander Mirza as chief martial law administrator, addressed the nation by radio. He acknowledged that the dissolution of Pakistan's political parties and the abrogation of the constitution had been "a drastic and extreme step."

It was, however, an effort by the military to save Pakistan from a succession of self-seeking politicians, Gen. Ayub Khan declared.

"History would never have forgiven us if the present chaotic conditions were allowed to go on any further," he added.

Karachi was calm and quiet Wednesday. Life pursued its day-to-day routine. No violence was reported from any part of the country.

The only unusual sight on the first day of the new regime was the presence of armed troops in front of the President's residence, the Pakistan radio building and the main railway station.

Until General Ayub Khan's speech Wednesday night little was known of the events that had preceded Tuesday night's peaceful change of regime.

President Mirza had called in the chiefs of diplomatic missions, including the U.S. ambassador, James M. Langley, shortly before midnight. He assured them that Pakistan, a member of the Baghdad Pact and the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO) would honor her foreign commitments in spite of the political changes at home.

The prevailing impression in diplomatic circles Wednesday evening was that the big change had been carefully prepared.

Blairsville Students Strike for a Principal

About 100 shouting Union County High School students demonstrated around the courthouse square in Blairsville Wednesday in protest to the school board's failure to hire a new high school principal.

The students—about a fifth of the student body—walked out of their classrooms around 10:30 a.m. Some carried homemade signs that read "School on Strike" and "For Principal." Before returning to school around 2:30 p.m., they attached the signs around the town square.

The school board of this mountainous county has been sharply split on the issue of a new principal to fill the post of former principal C. R. Collins whose contract was not renewed by County School Supt. Pat Helton.

Two of the three members of the board were in favor of renewing Collins' contract. But Helton refused to renew it.

Meanwhile, the Union County Grand Jury Wednesday issued a recommendation that the grand jury appoint future school boards instead of their being selected by popular vote. The current board was elected.

The school board is scheduled to meet at 10 a.m. Friday to select a new principal.

At a court hearing Tuesday, Judge John E. Frankum said Collins could not be rehired because he had signed a contract to become principal at Lyerly School in Chattooga County.

Mystery Death

Jones County Coroner W. T. Pitts announced Tuesday plans are being made for an inquest Oct. 16 into the mysterious death last June of Macon musician Norman Jones. Pitts said witnesses would include Jones County Sheriff Holmes Hawkins and GBI Agent J. E. Carnes, of Eatonton. Jones, 39, a Macon piano salesman and country music performer, was found tied to a tree half-nude and strangled last June 14 in a wooded area of Jones County between Gray and Haddock. . . . Three Savannah men Wednesday were fined $100 each for the illegal possession of coin-operated amusement machines by City Police Court Judge George Oliver. Fined were Arthur Airmar, 30; Gordon Lanier, and Vernon Vandora, 44.

. . . Capt. Harland Burrough, of Rome, and two other Ft. Benning helicopter pilots have been awarded the winged "S" emblem by the Sikorsky Aircraft Corp. for their heroic rescue work during a blizzard last winter in the New York state area. The three pilots, which included 1st Lt. William S. Kille and Capt. Louis A. Evans, also of Ft. Benning, flew more than 150 missions in 72 hours during the storm to rescue persons trapped without supplies in the open.

Thomas CD Rally

Leading local, state and federal lawmakers, attorneys general and county commissioners from seven states met in Thomasville Wednesday for a conference with national civil defense authorities. Judge Thomas Goodman, regional director of civil and defense mobilization, said the conference was called to discuss plans for the preservation of civil governments in case of a sneak enemy attack on the United States. . . . Farmer practices and favorable weather are reasons Georgia farmers are harvesting one of their best cotton crops in history from the smallest acreage yet, D. L. Branyon, cotton specialist for the Extension Service, said Wednesday. Cotton quality is the best in years, he said. . . . Sheriff J. J. McCorkle said a Ft. Benning soldier, Sfc. Lester Springston, 39, of Dale, Ind., shot and killed himseld Wednesday on a rural road near Buena Vista, Ga. Springston's body was found by Neal Williams, who live nearby. . . . An election is scheduled for Monday to determine whether the City of Swainsboro will be extended in area from 3 1/7 to 15 square miles, according to Freddie Keen, county ordinary.

Livestock Judging

The University of Georgia livestock judging team, coached by James R. Danion, took top honors in the Intercollegiate Livestock Judging Contest in Atlanta this week. Pete Moody, of Dixie, and Preston Hart, of Lyons, were the two high scorers for the team. . . . James R. Blair, publisher of the Americus Times-Recorder for the past 27 years, pledged continued service to an expanding community at the dedication of the paper's new building Tuesday.

3 Youths Bound Over in Burglary Wave

Three youths Wednesday were ordered held under $5,000 bonds for the Fulton County Grand Jury in connection with an extensive burglary wave over South Atlanta.

Municipal Judge Luke Arnold assessed the bonds against Donald Taylor, 18, of Dorsey Avenue, East Point; Raymond Pugh, 17, of a Brantley Street, NW, address, and Leon Wesley Biddy, 18, of a Stewart Avenue, SW, address.

Detective R. B. Moore and R. E. Nickerson identified the ring leader of the group as a 16-year-old who was in custody of Fulton Juvenile Court. They said the 16-year-old led 24 raids on churches, service stations and stores in a three-week period, beginning Sept. 13.

The crime spree ended Monday when morning watch patrolmen apprehended the group at a restaurant at 689 Whitehall St., SW, detectives said.

Of the 24 burglaries, nine were listed as churches.

Detectives said the 16-year-old who was arrested two months ago on burglary charges and turned over to juvenile court, participated in all 24 burglaries. They charged Taylor was present on eight; Biddy helped in six and Pugh participated in 10.

None of the youths is employed or attends school, detectives said.

(Names of accused persons under 17 years of age are withheld in accordance with Georgia juvenile law).

Marilyn Braves Fever for Film

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Marilyn Monroe, plagued by a virus infection for several days, was confined to her Bel Air hotel suite Wednesday with a 102-degree temperature.

She reported for work Tuesday despite the fever. Director Billy Wilder shot around her scenes in the film "Some Like It Hot" at United Artists studio.

Peace-by-Science Proposed in U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Australian Foreign Minister Richard G. Casey introduced a science - for - peace resolution Wednesday in the U.N. General Assembly's social committee.

He wants the Assembly to ask Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold to survey during the next year the peaceful application of scientific knowledge and the most urgent problems for future research.

Meeting on Trade School Is Set

By HERMAN HANCOCK

Atlanta and Fulton County boards of education will meet in special session Saturday to expedite plans for construction of a $3 million trade and technical school for the Atlanta area.

The decision to move promptly came at a meeting of the joint Atlanta-Fulton County area vocational committee Wednesday at the City Hall. Special board sessions are scheduled at 10 a.m. Saturday so action can be taken before the state board session set for next Monday.

If plans materialize as proposed local school systems will provide one-half of the construction costs and the state the remaining $1½ million. DeKalb County and other near-by systems also are expected to be asked to participate.

Thomas W. Clift, executive director of vocational education for Atlanta and Fulton County schools, said from 20 to 40 acres should be acquired as a site. He added that a "wheel" type of construction should be sought, providing a central hub for consolidated activities and outlying buildings for various vocational endeavors.

Clift emphasized that the "wheel" type of construction would provide expansion space and still remain functional.

After the facility is built and equipped, the state would take over the expense of educational functions, under the plan, but administration would still be a function of Atlanta schools. Local industries would be asked to help equip the school.

Although the committee made no definite commitments as to the share which will be required of the city and Fulton or other systems, it is expected that cost will be based on enrollment ratios.

Library Assn. Will Caucus Here Friday

Paul Gordon

The Georgia Chapter of the Special Libraries Association will hold its biennial meeting Friday and Saturday at the Woodruff Memorial Building, Emory University. The theme of the program will be "Human Relations—a Positive Force in Administration."

On Friday morning visiting librarians will tour Atlanta-area libraries. Registration will be at 2 p.m., in the lobby of the Woodruff Memorial Building.

Paul Gordon, associate professor of the School of Business Administration at Emory University, will deliver the keynote address of the opening session at 2:30 p.m. A discussion will follow on the questions "What Can Libraries Learn from Management?" and "How Can Management Standards Be Applied to Library Operations?"

Miss Marion Lucius, executive secretary of the Special Libraries Association, with headquarters in New York, will talk to the group Friday night after the biennial business meeting on the subject, "Communications Within the Association."

A panel discussion will highlight the Saturday morning meeting at 9:30. Members of the panel who will discuss "Human Relations in the Library" will be: Miss Agnes Reagan of the Emory University Division of Librarianship, Miss Katherine Glass of the Callaway Mills Library in LaGrange, Georgia; Mrs. Mary S. Waddell of the Communicable Disease Center Library in Atlanta, Dale Barber of the Georgia Tech Library, and Roger Krum of the University of Florida. Venable Lawson of the Atlanta Public Library will be the moderator.

More Strenuous Driver Tests Are Asked In 13-State Conference of Lawmakers Here

Impartial suspension of driver licenses and more strenuous driver examinations can play key roles in reducing the nation's highway traffic toll, a 13-state conference of Southern lawmakers was told here Wednesday.

Driver licensing is "the most economical and productive means at the disposal of traffic authorities for bringing order into our present street transportation program," declared Glenn V. Carmichael, assistant director of training at Northwestern University Traffic Institute.

About 60 Dixie legislators are attending the traffic safety conference, which is cosponsored by the President's Committee for Traffic Safety and the Council of State Governments and which will continue through Friday at the Dinkler Plaza.

Striking deficiencies found in state driver licensing programs, Carmichael said, include inadequate training of examiners, insufficient effort to improve drivers convicted of violations, deficient systems of keeping records and mediocre administration.

The Wednesday program also saw Robert L. Donigan, general counsel of the Northwestern institute, strongly recommend nationwide adoption by state legislatures of the Uniform Vehicle Code.

Donigan said the Uniform Vehicle Code—a proposed set of traffic regulations recommended for adoption in all states by national traffic safety groups—would stimulate safer driving by reducing motorists' confusion over conflicting traffic laws.

The uniform code, he continued, has been sustained as valid and competent legislation by numerous appellate courts. For that reason, he said, "state legislative committees need not be faced with the task of building a particular section of their traffic code from the ground up.

Other speakers included Robert E. Raleigh, conference director; Henry J. Hoeffer, the National Safety Council's assistant general manager, and George W. Barton, director of traffic engineering at the Northwestern institute.

Let's Go Marketing

Fish Prices Lowered During National Week

By VIRGINIA DYSARD
Constitution Food Editor

Every fish must have his day, and all the days during the week of Oct. 6-12 are the fishes' days, because it's Fish 'n' Seafood Week.

"The fishing industry has long played a vital part in the life and economy of our nation. As our population continues to grow and as our land becomes more fully utilized, we will turn to the sea for more and more of the nutritive food requirements needed to maintain our American Standard of Living." This quote by President Dwight D. Eisenhower is from a telegram to the chairman of the National Fish and Seafood Week Committee.

Fresh and frozen fish and shellfish supplies are at a high level this month. Shrimp landings reach a peak at this time of the year, reports Mrs. Betty Alexander, extension consumer information specialist. Clams are also abundant. Other shellfish in good supply are oysters and scallops. Fillets of cod, flounder, haddock and ocean perch are in good supply, as are steaks from swordfish, halibut and salmon.

Among the fresh fish available in good volume during the month of October are bluefish whiting, porgies and butterfish. Stocks of frozen fishsticks are higher than last year. With such variety of seafood choices, you'll find many that suit your taste, fit the food budget and add something new to your meals.

There is another food week now too, it's National Apple Week. And this is certainly the year for apples, supplies are the largest since 1950. The quality is good and the apples are uniform size and low in price. Look for high quality in Tokay grapes, reasonably priced. Bartlett pears will remain in good supply during October. Lemons will be reasonably priced, too.

Economical buys at the vegetable counter are Irish potatoes, greens (turnip, mustard, collard), rutabagas and cabbage. Good supplies of carrots, celery and lettuce are available at attractive food shopper prices.

Fresh and frozen fishery products may be purchased in a variety of cuts or forms. A more economical product is generally assured if one of the following commercial forms is requested instead of a specialty product.

Whole or round fish are those marketed just as they came from the water. Before cooking they must be scaled and eviscerated (which means removing the entrails). The head, tail and fins may be removed, if desired, and the fish either split or cut into serving-size portions, except in fish intended for baking.

Drawn fish are marketed with only the entrails removed. In preparation for cooking, they generally are scaled. Head, tail and fins are removed, if desired, and the fish split or cut into serving-size portions.

Dressed or pan-dressed fish are scaled or eviscerated, usually with the head, tail, and fins removed. The smaller sizes are ready for cooking as purchased (pan-dressed). The larger sizes of dressed fish may be baked as purchased.

Steaks are cross-section slices of the larger sizes of dressed fish. They are ready-to-cook as purchased.

Fillets are the sides of the fish, cut lengthwise away from the backbone. They are practically boneless and require no preparation for cooking.

Sticks are pieces of fish cut lengthwise or crosswise from fillets or steaks into portions of uniform width and length.

DR. DAVIS MEANS BUSINESS
Sign Says "Do Not Disturb"

Odds Are 6-to-1 Against Callers When They Ring This Telephone

By JOYCE GEMMILL

"Parental attempts to curb telephone addicts only result in adolescent anger." That's the opinion of an expert in psychoanalysis, Dr. Gerald H. J. Pearson. He thinks it best for parents to close their eyes and ears.

This sage bit of advice may go far in boosting the sales of ear plugs and dark glasses but it didn't solve the problem of Dr. and Mrs. Robert C. Davis of Atlanta.

The proud if slightly frustrated parents of six children ranging from 7 to 19, the Davises found that one telephone wire would stretch about as far as a dollar at a two-dollar sale. And oh, we forgot about grandma, Mrs. Dowdell Brown, Sr.,—she lives here too!

As might be expected, continuous riot ruled the Davis roost with the telephone complaint department right in the middle of it all. The doctor's patients were in a constant stew and so was the doctor.

FINDS IT IMPOSSIBLE

Mrs. Davis found it impossible to keep up with the doings of her friends and fellow clubwomen. The children emphatically stated that their social life was going completely to pot and as for grandma, well, she began to take an avid interest in the nearest pay station.

Mrs. Davis decided one evening that things had gone far enough. A family council was held and the telephone company called in as a friendly mediator. The result? Three phones were rushed to the Davis residence — one for dad, one for grandma and one for the off-spring. Mrs. Davis decided to do her telephoning while the children were in school. (We wonder what she does on week ends?)

CODE OF HONOR

A code of honor was then instituted which included: Limiting all phone conversations to three minutes, sharing the phone equally and no phoning after 8 p.m. It was also suggested that a private switchboard would be of considerable help but this idea hasn't been put into effect as yet.

What do teen-agers talk about on the telephone? According to Mrs. Davis there isn't anything they don't talk about. She's had difficulty in keeping an accurate check on her 17-year-old daughter Dana, a senior at Westminster, however, because Dana has a habit of closeting herself in the bedroom, closing the door, and flopping on the bed.

Dana has been known to keep all three phones going at one time, running from one room to the other in a sort of marathon style. Running her a close second, is big brother Carter, Jr., a sophomore at Emory. His conversations run an express between fraternities and girls. Very often records are played over the phone accompanied by the usual teen-age grunts and groans. Beethoven is not a serious competitor to bop in this musical exchange.

Homework is on the telephone agenda too but what Mrs. Davis can't understand is the telephone call made to the current girl friend after leaving her just five minutes before.

While all this is going on 7-year-old Renny isn't to be left out of the picture either. When he can wedge a call in between his older brothers and sisters he gets busy calling all his little playmates inviting them over to play.

On second thought, maybe we could interest the Davises in some ear plugs and dark glasses.

WAC Band Leader Rules With a 'Velvet Glove'

By BETTY CARROLLTON

She may not whistle while she works, but at least her job is a melodious one.

Capt. Alice V. Peters of Coal Grove, Ohio, is "a natural" for her job of directing and commanding the 14th Army WAC Band, which is giving two concerts daily at the Southeastern Fair.

Her duties embrace many musical and administrative jobs in one, but Capt. Peters doesn't consider it work because "I love it so much."

She's handled the combined jobs of being commanding officer, executive officer, band director and concert manager since 1952, shortly after she completed 13 weeks of special training following her commission during 1951.

MOTHERLY ADVICE

She's also a combined supply - training - personnel-safety-transportation - finance office for the 45 women under her command. ("With a little motherly advice and female psychology thrown in on occasion," Capt. Peters admitted with a laugh.)

Capt. Peters' assignment is a direct reflection of her civilian employment: directing the marching and concert bands at Coal Grove High School, and teaching 140 instrumental students for six years. ("But I do not regret leaving the classroom!" she insists.)

A graduate of Dawson Bryant High School in Coal Grove, she won an academic scholarship there and attended Ohio State University, where she earned a B.S. degree in musical education. She was a member of the university concert and symphony groups; played piano and cornet with the university dance band. ("But I never have time to play any more," she said.)

AWARDED RIBBON

Awarded the Commendation Ribbon with Metal Pendant in 1955 for her able leadership and outstanding performance as director of the WAC band, Capt. Peters rules her troops more with a velvet glove than an iron hand.

Perhaps it's her own infectious sense of humor that inspires some of the pranks her musicians have played on the trim commander, only officer in the company. For instance, on Halloween night a couple of years ago, the girls all showed up for their entertainment session at Ft. McClellan WAC center dressed in garish costumes.

"Somehow, they've managed to do that on every Halloween since," Capt. Peters said. (Only this year, they probably won't, because she's expecting them to do so.)

The group had been on the road on a cross-country concert tour for 50 days when Capt. Peters awoke one morning with the realization that it was "April Fool's Day." The trip had been rather hectic, and the evening's concert was at a well-known university, with the institution's top brass on hand. Knowing her girls so well, Capt. Peters cautioned her first sergeant to have the girls "lay off" their April Fool pranks to assure the concert's success.

They performed beautifully, and the audience's applause demanded an encore. Capt. Peters announced they would play "When the Saints Go Marching In." Just after the first note, the entire band left their chairs, marched down the steps to the rear of the auditorium, circled the audience and then returned to the stage — playing all the while.

BEST PART

"I was left stranded on the podium, wondering how I'd explain to all those dignified officials," Capt. Peters recalled. "And a few minutes later, the university's top personnel were declaring the last number was the best part of the concert!"

Georgia is not one of the 29 states represented in the WAC band, a situation Capt. Peters said she will be glad to help correct.

"I'll hold auditions for Georgians any time they want to contact their recruiting officer," she promised.

Rauback, Waddell Vows Said

John Robert Waddell and his bride, the former Frances Elizabeth Rauback, are living at 3624 Woods Dr., Chamblee, following their return from a wedding trip to Mr. Waddell's former home in Marshalltown, Iowa.

The couple was married at McElroy Memorial Presbyterian Church in Chamblee, with a reception given afterward by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Rauback, in the church parlor.

The Rev. Kenneth P. Craig officiated at the service, and Mr. Rauback gave his daughter in marriage. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Peggy Snyder of New Baltimore, Mich., as matron of honor.

Mr. Waddell, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Waddell of Chamblee, formerly of Marshalltown, Iowa, chose Gay Spurler of Chamblee as his best man. C. A. Black and Sam Nunn ushered.

People Wonder About Anjette But No One Really Knows!

MACON—"Well, how's Anjette today?" The question comes from all directions when you leave the Bibb County courthouse these days. The maid at the hotel, the newsstand operator, the police on the corner, waitresses, clerks and just passing pedestrians want to know the same.

How's Anjette? How is it with a woman charged with a crime so heinous as poisoning her own? How does she feel? How does she act? What is she thinking as accusing witnesses pass before her, as lawyers for and against her stride about, asking questions, making motions, causing the quiet courtroom to ring with the grandiloquent language of the law? This is more than idle curiosity, I think. It's part of the human need in all of us to understand if we can what goes on in the heart and mind of a person caught up in a massive and spectacular tragedy. Suppose it were I, we ponder, and mentally try the role on for size. How would I feel in her shoes?

Well, of course, there's no way of really knowing. Even if Anjette Lyles talked to us we might not know much. As it is, all we have to go by is how she looks in the courtroom, what's she wearing, the way she moves, the expressions that come and go on her face.

Each morning there's a flurry of discussion among the members of the press about her clothes. "What color would you call that?" the men reporters appeal to the women. Gravely we act like fashion mentors and dredge up bits of description.

"Not really brown . . . more of a taupe. Why don't you call it cinnamon? Well, maybe light brown. . . . Crepe? No, I don't think it's crepe. Maybe polished cotton or one of the new satin-back fabrics. . . . Yes, that's a V-neck and a gored skirt. And her earrings? Call them rhinestones if you want to—how do you know they're not diamonds?"

Solemnly we each record details of her dress and coiffure and relay them to the world by telephone, telegraph and teletype—as if by those words we can convey some true picture of this strange woman.

We search her face anxiously for some clue as to how she feels. Grief-stricken? Her husband's brother, D. K. Gabbart Jr., said he had dinner with her the night after Joe Neal Gabbart's funeral and her attitude was "one of levity—I didn't notice any particular sorrow or grief." Try to arrive at some judgment on that and you probably fail, remembering sadly times of grief in your own life when you laughed and talked with artificial brightness to keep from falling apart.

Is she worried? Nervous? Frightened?

One by one we arrive at the word, "calm." She might be any spectator in the courtroom—interested in the proceedings but in an impersonal, detached way. She talks with lawyers. She smiles occasionally. She goes out at recess with the matron and there's a certain buoyancy in her step.

The press worries over adjectives to describe her. "We stopped calling her 'attractive' last summer," a wire service reporter remarked. "But what else are you going to call her? I've worn out "plump" and I hate "comely.'"

You try to be precise but it's difficult. She changes. One moment she looks middle-aged and frankly fat. And then you catch her looking over her shoulder, searching the face of a prospective juror and you are astonished by her beauty—the clear cut, finely moulded features, the startling combination of dark eyes, black eyebrows and white hair, the bright red lips, the phenomenal baby-like skin. You catch—or imagine you catch—a momentary look of wistful vulnerability.

And then her back is turned and you see the thick shoulders, the short, plump neck, the hands ostentatiously fingering the little Testament.

How's Anjette? Probably nobody really knows.

Teen-Age Mail

No Reason for Party To Be Necking Binge

By DOROTHY RICKER

Dear Mrs. Ricker:

My problem is different from others. The teen-agers in my crowd recently started having necking parties.

My parents found out about them and have forbidden me to go to any more parties. All teen-age advisers say to go with another crowd, in a case like this, but every single friend of mine necks.

The only reason that the other kids don't is because nobody can stand them. What can I do when all my friends neck all night at parties? When I do go I just sit in a corner and all the boys avoid me.

My mother doesn't approve of all this necking so she called my best friend's mother and told her about it—but she does not even care! Please help me!

I am the sponsor of a girl's club (32 members) at a local high school so your story is not a new one to me, although the situation seems to be more prevalent among the junior high set than among the older, more mature teen-agers.

When I first planned a party for my teen-age son, he and several of his friends told me the "kids necked" at all the parties and it was hopeless for me to try to give a "different" party. The group also complained about the parties not being much fun.

So, the first party we gave for teen-agers had me a little worried. As it turned out everybody had a grand time playing games and dancing. There was no necking and the party was talked about for weeks as the best they had ever attended. Since then I have given many parties for teen-agers so I know from experience, there is absolutely no reason for them to turn into necking binges.

I blame parents for situations such as you describe. All teen-age parties should be chaperoned and planned carefully with enough interesting things to do to keep the young people entertained and enthusiastic. Parents should not try to 'run' the party but they should help with the suggestions and ideas that will add to the fun.

Dear Mrs. Ricker:

I've watched your column for a long time, hoping you would write something about rock 'n' roll. If you have, I missed it. My parents say it is "rotten stuff" and won't let me listen to it. What is your opinion?

While I do not have the enthusiasm for rock 'n' roll that most teen-agers have, I do not consider it "rotten stuff" either. My husband and I have chaperoned teen-age dances where rock 'n' roll was played all the evening. In each case the youngsters were well-behaved and did not 'get out of line.' Even though I find very little real music in rock 'n' roll, it does have a definite beat which is, I believe, what teen-agers like about it.

A BALL TO HIM MEANS SOMETHING TO BAT
To Merry Carpenter, It Means a Dreamy Dance Dress

Girls, Pity the Poor Male, He Speaks Different Language

By RAYMONDE ALEXANDER
Atlanta Constitution Fashion Editor

Girls, pity the poor male when he starts lambasting your new fashions.

When he can't visualize you in a trapeze or imagine you wearing a clutch, he doesn't really deserve scorn. He needs education. He's just poorly informed and it will take more than fashion words to inform him.

These will just confuse him more for he doesn't begin to see the same thing you see when talking in the vernacular of fashion.

Why, he doesn't think of a garment you wear when you say you need a new slip. He has visions of you heading for a tumble with feet flying in the air and you making a one point landing on your derriere. He just can't believe you would want this—yet you have spoken. All he can do is shake his head and wonder about women.

WORD "BEAD"

The same may be true of the word "bead." He sees a gun drawn shoulder high on some target. You—well, you see a necklace you can't live without.

Admit it. There's very little similarity.

Or can he help it if a point to you means the fashion shape of your shoe while it makes him think of a bird dog poised with one foot cocked, tail extended and nose breathing toward a covey of quail?

Take the little dress of electric blue. You tell him excitedly that it's the new trapeze. First thing that comes to his mind is a circus man floating hazardously through the air on a swing.

2-PIECE DRESS

Here you might take the patience to explain that the trapeze in this instance is a two - piece dress with a skirt that stands away from the body and a top that's double-breasted with a collar that is wide and away from the neck. Tell him the jacket hits about waist level and the over-all effect is young and quite as exciting as his daring man. Then, you may win him. At least, you'll have him understanding the words.

Say you want an empire and immediately he becomes belligerent. After all, he slaves all day for you. Won't you ever be satisfied. If you can hold off his outburst long enough to describe the high-waisted dress of wool tweed you had in mind all the time, he may get the idea. You want a new fashion and it's detailed with buttons down the placket and across the shoulder and a perky bosom bow.

Even as simple a fashion as the ball gown may throw some husbands. Having been taught from childhood that a ball is a little sphere to hit with a bat, it may take him a minute to think of a dance floor and that you need a special dress.

Try showing him a white peau de soie number banded with a wide sweep of turquoise and you may convince him you need it. The bodice hugs snugly and the skirt billows lightly into a long flow in the back and waltz-length in the front.

If, after you've given him these finer definitions of words, he still insists that a clutch is part of an automobile and not a coat, you might as well resign yourself—he'll never see fashion as fashion. But don't antagonize him — even if he doesn't see it—you still want him to pay for it.

Chattanoogans Plan 5th House Party

For the fifth year a house party of Chattanoogans will get under way tomorrow at the Heart of Atlanta Motel for the Tech-Tennessee football game.

Eight couples, all of whom are good friends, will comprise the party, including Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Latimer Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John T. Lupton, the Rody Davenports, the Bob Caldwells, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Oehmig, the George Bryans, Mr. and Mrs. Martin S. Ochs and Mr. and Mrs. James Waterhouse.

On Sunday Mrs. Latimer, the former Lane Winship of Atlanta, and her sister, Mrs. Dan Hankey, will entertain at breakfast for the group at the Hankey home on E. Wesley road. This party is also an annual event following the game. The visitors will return home Sunday afternoon.

OTHER CHATTANOOGANS expected for the game are Mr. and Mrs. Carter Paden Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Littleton Spurlock. Mrs. Paden is the former Janet Cheves of Atlanta.

MR. AND MRS. EVANS SHUFF and Mr. and Mrs. William V. Bishop have issued invitations for cocktails on Saturday, Oct. 18, following the Tech-Auburn game for a group of Auburn visitors.

The party, an annual event, will be held at the Bishop home on Ivy road. Mr. Bishop is an alumnus of Auburn.

MR. AND MRS. ROY B. SEWELL are off tomorrow for Dallas, Tex., to attend the Texas-Oklahoma football game on Saturday in the Cotton Bowl. In Dallas they will join Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Cornwell of Oklahoma City and Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Brown of Jackson, Miss., with whom they attend the Kentucky Derby every spring.

MRS. J. RICHARD GRAY, a former Atlantan who has been the guest of Mrs. A. F. Winecoff on Rumson road for the past two weeks, will return tomorrow to her home in Rockledge, Fla.

THE CHARLES MERIWETHERS are due home today from New Orleans where they have been guests since Sunday at the Jung Hotel while attending an insurance convention.

MR. AND MRS. HAL DUMAS JR., Mr. and Mrs. Norris Broyles Jr., Sam Eplan and Bob Clark Jr. will fly to New York today to serve as delegates to the annual meeting of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society at the Sheraton-Hilton Hotel.

Mr. Dumas is chairman of the Greater Atlanta chapter, Mr. Broyles and Mr. Eplan are members of the board of directors, and Mr. Clark is executive director. Their wives are volunteers with the chapter programs.

MRS. LEWIS TERRY will return tomorrow to her home in Spartanburg after a few days with her sister, Mrs. Paul H. Wolfe on Blackland road.

HOSPITAL NOTE—Though she is not permitted to have visitors, Mrs. Kate B. Oliver is recovering from a heart attack at Georgia Baptist Hospital.

MAJ. AND MRS. WALTER SLAYDEN are now settled in their new home at 1701 Remington Rd., Sandy Springs, having moved from Peachtree Battle avenue.

Mrs. Slayden leaves Sunday for Washington, D.C., to attend a meeting of the executive board of the National League of American Pen Women and also the breakfast honoring the new league president, Catherine Urban of California, at the Statler Hotel.

MR. AND MRS. A. B. LONG JR. and Mr. and Mrs. Earl S. Ailor of Knoxville, Tenn., will be central figures when Dr. and Mrs. William A. Nelson entertain at a football brunch on Saturday, preceding the Tech-Tennessee game. The party will be held at 11 o'clock at the Luau, with guests including other Knoxville friends, as well as a group of Atlantans.

MRS. J. TATTNALL KOLLOCK is expected to arrive today from Charleston to spend several days with Mr. and Mrs. George Kollock on Longleaf drive.

MRS. GEORGE L. EVOY, who is on a seven-country tour of Europe with officials of the American Automobile Assn., was among guests attending a recent reception at the House of Commons in London. Hosts for the affair were E. M. Cooper-Key, member of Parliament, and members of the British Travel and Holidays Assn. Mrs. Evoy represents the Georgia Motor Club on the trip.

PATRICIA GAIL BROWN, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Davis, has been pledged to the Chi Omega sorority at the University of Tennessee.

DONALD B. TURNER, USAF, and Mrs. Turner have arrived from Gunter Field, Montgomery, for a visit to the former's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Herman L. Turner on Montclair drive.

MARGARET ALLEN, daughter of the Scott W. Allens Jr., has resumed her classes as a senior at Pine Manor Junior College.

MRS. HAROLD E. MARCUS, chairman of the Women's Division of the Atlanta Jewish Welfare Fund, left last week to join a group of 20 community women leaders for a three-week study of welfare, resettlement and absorption programs of UJA-supported agencies in Europe and Israel.

As I See It

Jolene Tells How Zorro's Kiss Feels

By PAUL JONES

I suppose that most women, at one time or another, have wondered how it feels to be kissed by a man with a mustache.

The thought never occurred to me until I sat down to chat with pretty Jolene Brand, a film actress who had just been kissed by Zorro in his first love scene before the TV cameras.

Jones

This particular scene had stopped activity at Walt Disney studios. Walt, all of the cartoon artists, cameramen, stars, stenographers, janitors, producers and directors at the studio had quit work to come down and watch Zorro execute his first kiss.

I went along with the crowd to watch this momentous event and, after it was all over, I asked Jolene what she thought about it.

"Have you ever before kissed a man with a mustache?" I inquired.

"No," she replied, her face turning a rosy red.

'How was it?" I persisted.

"It tickled," she said, smothering an embarrassed giggle. "But, it was very nice."

She paused for a moment and then mustered the courage to say: "Any woman who hasn't kissed a man with a mustache should—by all means (kiss a man with a mustache)."

Jolene made these observations under a slight handicap. For, while she was filming the kissing scene with Guy Williams who stars as both Don Diego de la Vega and Zorro in the TV series, she was being coached from the sidelines by a director and cameramen who were shouting such pointers as "Don't hold him so tight," and "Don't cover his face too much, Jolene," and "Turn your left cheek a little more toward the camera, Jolene."

All the while—approximately three minutes—four cameras were firing away, recording on film the kissing scene from every conceivable angle.

I WONDERED at one point why this kissing business was so important in a show which, up to now, has been a program designed expressly for the youngsters.

Jolene provided the answer. "Zorro is going to become an adult show."

"They have found," she said, "that shows designed for the youngsters don't sell AC spark plugs. They figure that by putting romance into the shows, they will get papa to stop the lawnmower and come in the house and watch TV and they figure that mom will put aside her housework while the show is on the air."

"But, won't all of this kissin' scare the youngsters away from their TV sets?" I asked.

"No," Jolene said. "I'm sure the youngsters have seen their mommies and daddies kissing. I don't think they will mind."

They just might notice a difference in technique, that's all.

INCIDENTALLY, you can see this kissing scene tonight on Zorro. The show is scheduled on Channel 11 at 8 p.m.

BETSY PALMER lets her hair down—and you can take that both ways—in William Saroyan's "The Time of Your Life" in which she costars with Jackie Gleason tonight at 9:30 on Channel 5.

As Kitty Duval, a woman of the streets, Betsy wears her hair long for the first time in her career.

"Aren't I sexy?" asked Miss Palmer in a rehearsal. "Jackie (Gleason) likes me to wear my hair like this," she explained. "He says it helps me to get into the mood for the role—and I will wear it long on the show."

Betsy Palmer

Miss Palmer admitted that she didn't know if "loose" women preferred "loose" hair, shoulder - length rather than in a bun on top, as she has always worn hers. But, she explained, "something drastic had to be done to indicate at a glance that Kitty Duval isn't the same little gal with egg on her face that Betsy Palmer's been playing all along."

You might just want to shoo the youngsters off to bed before Betsy shows up tonight.

Poor Support Flubs Berle's TV Return

(Copyright 1958 by The New York Times Co.)

NEW YORK—Milton Berle returned to television Wednesday night under circumstances that can only be described as puzzling. He seemed the orphan of the airwaves.

The comedian ended his two-year absence from the home screen by agreeing to appear on a half-hour variety show at 9 o'clock Wednesdays over NBC. In advance of the premiere the word was out that this would be a new Berle in a new show.

Jack Gould

Berle does seem different. He is quieter and more relaxed; he is not pushing so hard; he is more mature in demeanor. While he has not yet conquered his inclination to break into other acts, evidently his is to be a more disciplined personality. If future weeks confirm his premiere performance in this respect, it could be an important advantage.

But a viewer had to rub his eyes to believe the conditions under which the former "Mr. Television" was forced to work. His four writers gave him a monologue that was limp indeed. He and his colleagues performed on a small studio floor with a minimum of settings. There was no pretense to imaginative staging. The program resembled a sustaining daytime show where the camera is just turned on and forgotten; apparently there was no production budget.

Bob Hope appeared for a fleeting instant at the program's start but then Berle was abandoned. As guests there were a young singer and a tap dancing trio of the sort to be found in every night club. A satire on the Moiseyev Dance Troupe disintegrated into an awkward gag that could not be understood. And that was Berle's premiere, a museum piece.

NOTICE is hereby given that at the meeting of the mayor and Board of Aldermen of the City of Atlanta, Ga., held on Monday, Oct. 6, 1958, an ordinance was introduced providing for the closing and/or abandonment of the following as a street or public thoroughfare, being no longer useful or necessary for the public use and convenience: That portion of HANNAH STREET, SE, from Miller Reed avenue southeast approximately 150 feet (Old 1951 City Limits).

Said ordinance will come before the mayor and Board of Aldermen of said City of Atlanta, Ga., for final passage at its meeting to be held on Oct. 20, 1958, at the City Hall in said City of Atlanta, Ga., at 2 o'clock p.m. At said meeting those persons desiring to be heard in connection with the proposed ordinance will be given the privilege.

GIVEN under my hand and seal of office on this the 7th day of October, 1958.

J. L. RICHARDSON,
Clerk, Board of Aldermen.

I have made application to the Aldermanic Board for a Beer and Wine license, 1167 Simpson Rd., NW. Hearing to be held by Police Committee, Oct. 15, 7:30 p.m., Municipal Traffic Division, 104 Trinity Ave., S.W. CLIFFORD D. HENRY

Soviet Paper Hits Advertising Methods

MOSCOW (AP)—The newspaper Soviet Culture is campaigning for efficient advertising without high pressure methods. It took a few slaps at window displays featuring items that lure in customers who are then told the merchandise is for display only—not for sale.

12th-Century Prophecy Describes Next Pope as Shepherd and Sailor

VATICAN CITY (AP)—"Pastor et nautus"—Shepherd and sailor.

This was St. Malachy's prophecy made more than 800 years ago, for the next Pope.

Several Roman Catholic prelates measure up to it.

One of them may be the next Pope. But the College of Cardinals may make a choice not immediately obvious. For once the cardinals retire in solemn conclave to the Sistine Chapel, Vatican sources emphasize, it would be foolhardy to try to guess who will emerge as pope. In the past, many ballots often were needed before a new pope was named.

1143 ONWARD

St. Malachy—born at Armach, Irland, in 1094 — journeyed to Rome to prophesy characteristics of the popes to be elected from 1143 onward. Many of the prophetic forecasts he made were apt.

Pius XI, a dauntless mountain climber, was described as fides intrepida—intrepid in the faith.

The description for Pius XII was "pastor angelicus"—angelic shepherd.

And for the next Pope it is "pastor et nautus." He should, it seems clear, be a shepherd of souls.

PERHAPS BY BIRTH

He may possibly be associated with the sea, perhaps by birth, perhaps through connection with a seaside archdiocese. Or he may come over the sea to Rome.

But there has been no pope from outside Italy in 400 years.

Given a broad interpretation, the prophecy could fit any prelate. For it could apply to a pontiff who sails the "Bark of St. Peter" — the Catholic Church — through particularly stormy times.

COLLEGE OF CARDINALS

This will be the first time in 600 years that Italians are not in a majority for an election in the College of Cardinals.

However, it is thought here another Italian likely will get the necessary vote of two-thirds-plus-one of those present. North Americans are given little chance.

One of the possible non-Italian candidates brought to prominence in recent months is gray-bearded Gregory Peter Cardinal Agagianian. Twice in June Pope Pius XII turned to him to fill imporant Vatican posts.

First, he was named pro-prefect of the Vatican's Congregation for Propagation of the Faith, as successor to the late Samuel Cardinal Stritch of Chicago.

PONTIFF GESTURES TYPICALLY AT PALACE
Speaks from Castel Gandolfo in September 1956

GOVERNING AFFAIRS

Then the Pope named Cardinal Agagianian a member of the Congregation of the Holy Office, headed by the pontiff himself, and first-ranking of the congregations governing the affairs of the Catholic Church.

How would the choice of Agagianian, now 63, fit in with St. Malachy's prophecy? He is patriarch of Armenia and his election might serve as a bridge across the seas between the Roman Catholic Church and the Orthodox rites of the East, including Russia's.

Similarly, the prophecy might apply to French-born Eugene Tisserant, dean of the cardinals and secretary of the Vatican's important Congregation for the Church in the Orient. He is 74.

MILAN ARCHBISHOP

Among Italians mentioned in speculation on a papal successor is Msgr. Giovanni Battista Montini, 61, now archbishop of Milan and once a close associate of Pope Pius XII as a pro-secretary of state for the Vatican.

The new Pope need not be a cardinal, and Archbishop Montini is not. He declined the red hat in 1953 in order to remain at Pope Pius' side.

Giuseppe Cardinal Siri, archbishop of Genoa, is another Italian often considered a papal possibility. At 52, he is the youngest member of the College of Cardinals. His archdiocese, Genoa, is a leading Italian port.

Other Italians who have been mentioned as possibilities:

Marcello Cardinal Mimmi, secretary of the Consistorial Congregation.

Giacomo Cardinal Lercaro, archbishop of Bologna.

Ernesto Cardinal Ruffini, archbishop of Palermo.

Msgr. Domenico Tardini, who like Msgr. Montini declined a red hat 1953 to continue work at the Vatican as one of the pro-secretaries of state.

Not since Holland's Adrian VI died in 1523 has there been a pope who was not from Italy.

All Dalton Teams Up To Fight Mock Disaster

By FRANK WELLS
Constitution Staff Writer

DALTON—Smoke poured out of Whitfield County courthouse Wednesday night, sirens screamed, and the Dalton-Wihtfield Civil Defense swung into action.

It was a mock exercise to test the civil defense units to determine their fitness in cases of real emergency. The test was as realistic as imagination and art could make it.

Smoke poured from smoke-pots to give a realistic atmosphere to the scene. Sixty-one volunteers were "wounded" and were made to look that way by a make-up expert from Ft. Benning—Lt. Thomas Trudeau.

The exercise started at 8 p.m. when the smoke-pots were set off.

The volunteer actors who were "wounded" were rescued from both floors of the simulated burning courthouse by rescue teams from Dalton, Calhoun, Cartersville, Canton, Smyrna and Carrollton. They worked under the direction of Ace Cook of Calhoun.

The "wounded" were first taken to first-aid tents on the courthouse lawn, where their injuries were screened. In the meantime, Mrs. Marion Sims, civil defense director here, had notified Hamilton Memorial Hospital on the two-way radio setup which links the hospital, civil defense, and the physicians of the area.

The hospital laid its plans, and called in the doctors by radio. The more seriously "wounded" were rushed to the hospital in ambulances from this northwest Georgia city's funeral homes.

Observing the operation were Col. Jack Grantham of the state civil defense office in Atlanta, and Dr. William J. McAnally from Region 3 headquarters of the Office of Civil Defense Mobilization in Thomasville.

"This is a joint effort," Mrs. Sims emphasized. "The local and state civil defense organizations are working hand-in-glove with the Hamilton Memorial Hospital, the Whitfield County Medical Society, and the Whitfield County Health Center."

Morris Span Dedicated To Ties with S. Carolina

By MIKE BARRON
Constitution Staff Writer

HARTWELL—A Georgia editor who left his "footprints on the sands of time" and two Southern senators were paid tribute Wednesday afternoon at the dedication of the second Louie Morris Memorial Bridge over the Savannah River near here.

The bridge was named in honor of the late Louie Morris, former editor of the Hartwell Sun, who devoated much of his time and effort to the erection of the old bridge and the planning of Hartwell Dam. The old bridge, located two miles upstream, will be 40 feet under water when the Hartwell Lake fills in 1960.

Each of the 10 speakers on the program and master of ceremonies Wilton E. Hall, chairman of the Hartwell Dam Steering Committee, paid tribute to Morris and the late Sens. Walter F. George (D-Ga) and Burnet R. Maybank (D-SC), whose efforts in Congress helped secure funds for the Hartwell Dam.

The principal speaker was Sen. Olin D. Johnston, senior senator from South Carolina. He recalled his past when as a boy he had to ford the Savannah River to get from South Carolina to Georgia on a visit to Hartwell. "We have progressed a long way since then," he said.

He said of Sen. George: "When he spoke out for anything his fellow senators sat up and listened. He kept moving for the Hartwell Dam when things looked worst."

He told how Sen. Maybank had fought for the dam when its funds were left out of an appropriations bill. "The bill was sent back three times one Saturday afternoon and the Senate finally adjourned until Monday. Sen. Maybank fought hard Saturday night for the dam."

Mrs. Daniel, LaGrange, Dies

Mrs. Dan Daniel of LaGrange died Tuesday in a LaGrange hospital.

Mrs. Daniel was the widow of a prominent Troupe County merchant and farmer. She was the sister of Frank R. Fling, clerk of the Fulton County Board of Commissioners.

Other survivors include seven children, Jimmy Daniel, D. E. Daniel, Morgan Daniel and Mrs. Clarence Day, all of LaGrange, and Wesley Daniel, Gastonia, N.C.; William Daniel, Houston, Texas, and Mrs. E. H. Hyde, West Point, Ga.

Mrs. Bishop, 96, Dies in Atlanta

Mrs. Dora Bishop, 96, of 1226 Cahaba Dr., SW, died Wednesday in a private hospital.

Mrs. Bishop was the widow of Virgil V. Bishop, a Carroll County physician.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by Howard L. Carmichael & Sons.

She is survived by a sister, Mrs. Dicie Steed of Jacksonville, Florida.

Arthur Lee Adams

ELBERTON—Funeral services for Arthur Lee Adams, 87, who died Wednesday at his home, will be held at 4 p.m. Thursday at the Concord Methodist Church. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

Mr. Adams, a retired farmer, was a lifelong resident of Elbert County.

"HAVE CAR WON'T TRAVEL"
NO GUN necessary! If you are a neat dresser, good mixer and above-all know how to spend money; 15 mins. of your time may change the entire course of your life and provide you and your family with a future which at present you enjoy only in day dreams on rainy Sunday afternoons.
NATION-WIDE concern, mfg. exclusive item which is compulsory by law will place 6 men, ages 25 to 45 on permanent jobs in local office.
YOU will receive complete training. YOUR PAY depends strictly upon your ability and initiative.
NATIONALLY our men average $200 per week plus.
INTERVIEWS 10 a.m. or 1 p.m. SHARP; Tues., Wed., Thurs., Suite 4, Darlington Apts., 2025 Peachtree, Northeast.
COME READY TO START IF YOU QUALIFY.

SALES FRANCHISE
AVAILABLE. No investment necessary. Protected franchise available immediately with national AAA-1 firm. Applicant must have previous sales experience and ability to handle established accounts. Franchise covers products sold strictly to industrial, commercial and institutional accounts. Unique servicing feature assures continual repeat business. Our several hundred coast-to-coast representatives average $7,000 to $10,000 per year. Group insurance, hospitalization, yearly bonus and other benefits available to the men selected. Phone: Mr. Trudeau, DR. 8-5992 for appointment.

I WANT 2 MEN

$150 to $250 Per Week
I WANT 2 neat appearing men with cars to represent an old national concern. One of the largest of its kind with offices established throughout the state. If you are willing to work hard for $150 and up per week and you are able to work in the city of Atlanta Monday through Friday, don't pass up this ad. If you are a man or average intelligence I want to talk to you. I know what you are probably thinking as you read this ad, the same as I thought to myself many times when I was out job hunting, that this is just another ad with a lot o. promises. Believe me, fellows, it is not. I don't care what your previous experience has been, whether it was selling magazines, books, vacuum cleaners, appliances, picture coupons or any other type of work. If you are able to open your mouth and talk to me, I will show you how easy it is to earn up to $250 a week with this company. Experience is not necessary, we give you complete training. If accepted, you'll be employed by one of the largest concerns of its kind in this country, you will be backed by millions of dollars of advance advertising. This advertising will keep you busy constantly calling on prospects in your territory with qualified appointments made by people demanding that our representatives call on them. This is a job with security for the rest of your life. Get in on the ground floor. You owe it to yourself to answer this ad. You have nothing to lose and everything to gain. Come in and let us prove to you that this is what you have been waiting for. Apply Mr. Boat, Peachtree-on-Peachtree Hotel, 6 to 8 p.m. Thursday only.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 heart	4 spades	5 hearts
Pass	Pass	5 spades	Pass
Pass	6 hearts	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead: Spade king.

Today's hand provided a bit of excitement when it came up in a recent tournament. Although the West players found themselves possessors of a nine-card spade suit, the best result any of them could attain was to take a 500-point sacrifice against the North-South slam.

In the West seat every player overcalled South's one-heart opening with a pre-emptive bid of four spades. North raised freely to five hearts and South was forced to pass inasmuch as partner's bid was made under considerable pressure.

The freak distribution inspired most Wests to persist to five spades and at this point North made an enlightening call — a forcing pass. This requests partner to either double the opponents or else go on to six. He felt that there was an excellent prospect for slam if South held three aces, and that with only two aces South would be forced to double.

At the table where the diagrammed bidding took place, South carried on to six hearts and West elected to defend.

West opened the king of spades and shifted to the eight of clubs. Declarer won the trick with the dummy's king. Trumps were extracted in two rounds and it seemed like smooth sailing since there seemed little doubt that a long diamond could establish itself for the discard of a club. But the first lead of diamonds showed that a long card in that suit could not be developed.

South saw that a squeeze would be required to fulfill the contract inasmuch as East obviously had the burden of protecting both minor suits. Declarer therefore cashed the ace of clubs and ran out all his trumps, coming down to the queen and one diamond and the seven of clubs, while the dummy held king and two small diamonds.

East, forced to reduce to three cards, had his choice of letting go the high club or unguarding the protection in diamonds.

The maximum North-South result was achieved at a table where declarer took all the tricks. West elected to under-lead his ace-king of spades in the hope that East held the queen and could then give him a diamond ruff. South won the trick and proceeded to execute the same squeeze on his opponent.

65 Per Cent Don't Use Tooth Brush

The United States National Health Survey reports that 36 per cent of us visited dentists at least once last year. City folk followed the "See Your Dentist Twice a Year" slogan more than did their country cousins. Urbanites average 1.9 visits as against 1.2 visits for rural inhabitants.

One out of five appointments involved extractions, whereas fillings were inserted or replace during 41 per cent of the visits. The survey also disclosed that 42 per cent of the population had not been to a dentist in three or more years.

Approximately 21.6 million persons are without their own teeth in the United States. This is 13 per cent of our people.

Dentists expect future generations to acquire this type of enamel through the use of fluorine during childhood. Caries-prone boys and girls should benefit most from this chemical.

Dental decay is the most common reason why teeth are lost. The process is stopped temporarily when the dentist cleans out the debris with his drill and fills the cavity with gold, silver, or plastic materials. But unless teeth are brushed faithfully and sweets that encourage decay are avoided, other areas become carious. In time, the tooth is destroyed.

Cleaning the teeth is the best prophylactic measure. It has been estimated that only 26 per cent use the toothbrush regularly and 65 per cent not at all.

The fact that today 65 per cent do not brush their teeth means that this device has not received universal acceptance. Centuries ago the handle was made of bone and hog bristles were tied on the end by hand. Modern brushes are made entirely of nylon or other plastics.

Stops Constipation Due to "Aging Colon"

New laxative discovery re-creates 3 essentials for normal regularity.

As you grow older, the internal muscles of your colon wall also age, lose the strength that propels waste from the body. Stagnant bowel contents become so dry and shrunken that they fail to stimulate the urge to purge.

Relief, doctors say, lies in a new laxative principle. Old-style bulks and moisteners may create gas, take 3 or 4 days for relief. Old-style salts and drugs cramp and gripe the entire system. Of all laxatives, only new COLONAID gives you its special 3-way relief that works only on the lower colon (area of constipation).

(1) COLONAID moisturizes dry, hardened waste for easy passage without pain or strain. (2) COLONAID'S unequalled rebulking action helps retone flabby colon muscles. (3) And COLONAID acts gently, on the nerve reflexes that stimulate the vital "mass movement" of your lower colon.

COLONAID relieves even chronic constipation overnight; is so gentle it was hospital proved safe even for women in critical stages of pregnancy. And COLONAID won't interfere with absorption of vitamins or other food nutrients. Get COLONAID, today!

There's Adventure in Visit To Disturbed Mideast

You can't buy a Coke in Jordan, but you can most anywhere else in the world. Dr. G. Ray Jordan, back from a round-the-world trip, reported they were on sale even in Formosa.

Dr. Jordan is a professor in Emory's Theology School and was educational director of a touring group of 24 Americans which made the globe-circling trip. Dr. Jordan said they were the first American civilians into Lebanon after the trouble there in May.

"I must admit that I was frightened at the idea of going into a country where there was fighting, but we went in anyway," Dr. Jordan said. He told of leaving his overnight bag for a moment on a seat in the airport terminal building at Beirut. "When I went back to pick it up, there was a policeman. I convinced him that the bag was mine, but it was just like the small bags that Lebanon's enemies had used to smuggle in bombs and bomb parts. There were 200 bombings in Lebanon and the police were very nervous and very cautious, of course," he said.

Dr. Jordan said the group was granted an interview by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek when they visited Formosa. "I asked him about the trouble in the Middle East, and his reply was that the Communists always start a ruckus some place other than the place they are really intending to attack—a sort of feinting movement," Dr. Jordan said. "When the Reds attacked Quemoy and Matsu, I realized that Chiang knew exactly what he was talking about."

Chiang Kai-shek is a Methodist, as is his wife. He told the group that he held family prayer every day. He attends church in his own private chapel each Sunday. "There are many Christians on Formosa," Dr. Jordan said. "I preached to the Mandarin Chinese church—through an interpreter, of course."

The reason Dr. Jordan was interested in the sale of Cokes was that "you can't trust the water in some of the countries. Of course, I don't drink wine or whisky, and I knew the water in the Cokes would be pure. I'm sure they'll be on sale in Jordan by the time I make another trip."

Fall Foliage Finery

Jim Davidson, editor and publisher of The Cleveland Courier at Cleveland, Ga., reports that the leaves are beginning to turn and that by this weekend the north Georgia mountains should be a riot of color.

A good trip to let you see the mountains in their fall finery is to go north from Cleveland or Dahlonega through Neel's Gap to Blairsville, then east through Young Harris to Hiawassee, then south through Unicoi Gap back to Cleveland and home.

Fair Was More Than Fun for These

Folks who travel with the midways seen at fairs have hearts as big as barrels, Jack Gilchrist reports. When students at the Cerebral Palsy School visited Lakewood as guests of the Southeastern Fair, the show people weren't content with just giving them rides and letting them see the shows. All of the people who run the "knock-'em-down-and-win-a-prize" booths loaded the children down with dolls, teddy bears, and all sort of "prizes"—and the children didn't even have to knock over a single thing.

RHYME A DAY

By OLLIE REEVES

"Automatic retirement at fixed age levels is compulsory in many organizations. This is objectionable to some employes who feel physically and mentally capable of continuing for several years."—Article quote.

Work is a habit, we are told . . . a habit that is hard to break . . . and many people who are old . . . are still unwilling to forsake . . . the drug-like habit that has bound . . . them to their labors long enough . . . and if they do, they hang around . . . the addicts who won't quit the stuff.

While talking to a long-time friend . . . he said, "I guess I should retire . . . why keep on working till the end . . . when I have all that I require . . . my home was paid for, years ago . . . I have some savings put away . . . but, what on earth, I'd like to know . . . would occupy my time each day."

But I know this, he'll never quit . . . for I have seen his kind before . . . they work and save a little bit . . . and then they want a little more . . . so they keep toiling all the while . . . until they're utterly worn out . . . and when they go they leave a pile . . . for relatives to fight about.

This is the irony of fate . . . these are the sins that men commit . . . they learn "to labor and to wait" . . . but never, never learn to quit.

YOUR STARS TODAY

Daily Guide—If you have any important decisions make them in the next few hours, or be prepared to put them off for awhile as Mars now will be in apparent retrograde motion until the middle of December. From now until then we can experience some frustrating change of pace. It could be we will have a slowdown of the optimistic pickup in business and also that some worldwide plans will be shelved for the time being.

If you are a Geminian, you may find this change of pace disconcerting. The Sagittarians may find some difficulty in their personal relationships. The Taureans can expect a return this fall of previous disturbing conditions, and in some measure so can the Leos, Aquarians and Scorpians, although the latter fortunately have some favorable circumstances.

Happy Birthday, Libra! There is some indecision to be expected now, so don't try to force any issues. Possibly you may have to wait until next February before being able to carry through with complete efficiency. Concentrate on finances at present, trying to earn more, or gather in extras and discipline your spending.

New base-coat discovery keeps nail polish on up to twice as long!

Greatest nail base-coat advance in 15 years!

Revlon's 'WONDER-BASE'

Manicure tests by 28,486 women in 118 beauty salons proved 'Wonder-Base' gives nail polish days of extra wear! Test after test proved that if you are hard on nail polish and it usually lasts three days, now it will last five or six days. And if your nail polish now lasts five days, with 'Wonder-Base' you can expect seven or eight days of wear. 'Wonder-Base' forms a strong film that "grips" nail polish firmly . . . combats chipping and peeling . . . despite detergents, typing, whatever you do! So quick, so easy — dries almost instantly! One More Tomorrow

It doesn't matter whether you're from Milwaukee, Omega, New York or Peoria, a toast to the New York Yankees is in order. They don't have the power and glamour of the Bronx Bombers of old, but they've still got class in the clutch.

Perched on the brink of defeat and faced with their second straight World Series setback since 1922, the Yankees created a tomorrow Wednesday afternoon in County Stadium.

Outlar

Ryne Duren's tremendous relief pitching and a gold-plated home run by Gil McDougald in the tenth were the most important paragraphs in the tingling script. And, of course, there was the all-important last-out relief lift by Bob Turley.

Otherwise, the Braves would be world champions and Warren Spahn would be wearing the hero's cloak. The Braves are still my choice in the seventh game, and Spahn is as much of a hero as a losing team can sponsor.

But Wednesday was a day for the Yankees and their revived legion of rooters. From a technical standpoint, it wasn't a great game. Rain had created an off-track, paritally responsible for the four errors made by the Braves. But it was a game 46,367 paying customers and millions of Gillette guests won't forget.

At the outset it looked as though the Yankees would be playing their next game in St. Pete next spring, instead of in County Stadium Thursday.

Hank Bauer, a tremendous man in any World Series hour, drilled Spahn for a two-out homer in the first. The skeptics then began to wonder if Fred Haney had made a mistake in starting the 37-year-old southpaw with only two days rest. But Spahn recovered from that jolt by Bauer, didn't surrender another run until the sixth. Starting Spahn was no mistake, and when he departed from the mound in the tenth, the fans gave Warren a throaty standing ovation he'll never forget.

—Duren Put the Blinkers on the Braves

Gritty Whitey Ford, also working with only two days rest, was no match for Spahn. In the very first inning, Art Ditmar went into action in the Yankee bullpen after the Braves went into action at the plate.

Red Schoendienst opened the inning with a single past Tony Kubek at short, advanced on Johnny Logan's sacrifice and came across on Hank Aaron's two-out single. It was only the first RBI of the Series for Hammerin' Hank. During the round ex-Cracker Ed Mathews, mired in the most miserable slump of his career, equalled a record he was later to break by whiffing for the tenth time in the classic.

Another Brave run came in and Ford went out in the second. With one out Wes Covington laced a liner into center, and Mickey Mantle tried for a shoestring catch. Mantle put up a beef that he caught the ball, and Casey Stengel strolled all the way to the outfield to inform Umpire John Flaherty that he had errored.

Stengel must have had a bad angle on the play, for even from the TV sets it was obvious that Mantle had trapped the ball. Once Stengel got out of camera range, Andy Pafko singled and Covington buzzed to third. Spahn, boosting his .400-plus average, then singled to provide a 2-1 Milwaukee edge.

Schoendienst then walked and Ford followed suit, with Ditmar coming on. The key play of the day, from a defensive standpoint, was next on the exciting agenda. At that point, Logan skied to Elston Howard in short left, and Milwaukee Coach Billy Herman gambled and lost. He waved the slow-moving Pafko home after the catch, and Howard pegged a strike to Yogi Berra. It was a bitter double-play pill for the Braves, for they were unable to get another runner that close to the plate until the tenth.

Spahn and Ditmar carried the 2-1 argument into the sixth, an inning in which the Yankees snarled the score. Mantle led with a single, and Howard then looped a hit into center. Bill Bruton, inserted for defensive insurance and his left-handed swing, juggled the ball for an error, and Mantle streaked to third. Berra, still dangerous with the money on the line, lifted a sacrifice fly into center, and Mantle crossed with the tying run.

—Spahn Was a Champion Without a Crown

Moose Skowron waited out a walk, and the Yankees had one in, two on and only one out. Spahn was on the ropes, but he bounced off like the great pro he is. Stengel, who employs old Enos Slaughter against right and left-handers, waved the southpaw swinger in to face Spahn. He dribbled out to Schoendienst, advancing both runners. Still ignoring the percentages, Stengel called on Jerry Lumpe, another left-handed hitter. Spahn calmly turned the one-time Birmingham Baron into an inning-ending strikeout.

Casey's next move proved his best of the day. He waved in Duren, the ill-tempered flame thrower. They say Duren can't see too well, but neither could the Braves. Rowdy Ryne struck out the side as a starter, repeated the feat in the ninth and hiked the number of whiff victims to ten before handing the reins to Turley in the pulsating tenth.

McDougald, the Yankees' Mr. Dependable, untied the knot which had existed since the sixth when he drove a Spahn serve over the left fence to launch the final inning. Two outs later, Howard and Berra singled, and Haney summoned ex-Cracker Don McMahon. Spahn deserved and received one of the loudest ovations in Series history, and the cheers were still ringing when Skowron greeted McMahon with a single which produced the fourth and winning run.

The Braves refused to surrender, but Yankees simply wouldn't be beaten on this overcast afternoon. Duren accused plate umpire Charlie Berry of bad eyesight when Logan walked with one out in the Brave tenth. Mathews then was called out on strikes, also fuming over the call. It was indeed an embarrassing moment for Eddie, for he had become the first batter ever to fan 11 times in a World Series.

The Yankees ignored Logan's advance to second, and Aaron fanned the dying victory flame by stroking a scoring single into left. Now it was 4-3 and Stengel was talking with Duren. He allowed the pitcher to serve Adcock a single, sending Aaron to third, then brought in Turley. Frank Torre, Cracker class of '54, batted for Del Crandall and became the final out.

So now it's 3-3, and the world championship and the winner's share of the purse is still up for grabs. Wednesday belonged to the Yankees, but tomorrow is another day. Perhaps the day the Braves will win the series, for there can't be another tomorrow for either team.

For Spahn, strong and steady then, had won the opening game in 10 innings. But that 10th inning caught up to him this grim, gray day as, pitching with his heart and his head as much as with that 37-year-old arm, he tried in vain to become the eighth man in the history of the Series to win three games.

Spahn made a game fight of it and, before he trudged disconsolately to the showers with two out in the 10th, he had run up a total of 28⅔ innings which rubbed out the six-game durability record of 27 innings set by the immortal Christy Mathewson 'way back in 1911.

It was a battle all the way before 46,367 roaring fans as Hank Bauer's solo homer gave the Yankees a first - inning lead; the Braves bounced back to tie it up that same inning; stormed ahead by one run in the second and then saw the Yanks deadlock it again in the sixth.

Inning after inning, in a game which had faced postponement after an early morning rain, they hammered away at each other with the tight-lipped Spahn stranding eight straining Yankee baserunners—until the Yankees drove him to cover in that torturous 10th.

Bauer broke the Yankees out on top with two down in the first when he blasted his homer far out into the left-field bleachers. For him it tied a record of four homers in one series, held by Lou Gehrig in four games and Babe Ruth and Duke Snider in seven games.

The Braves bounded right back as Red Schoendienst led off with a broken bat single through the hole off of starter Whitey Ford. Johnny Logan sacrificed him to second and after Mathews fanned, Aaron singled to right to score Schoendienst.

Milwaukee moved in front in the second when, with one down, Wes Covington singled to center and, while it appeared that Mickey Mantle caught the ball, the umpires ruled it had been trapped. The muscular Covington moved to second as Andy Pafko singled to right and Spahn moved himself out in front with a single to center which scored Covington and sent Pafko to second.

Schoendienst walked, loading the bases, and that was all for Ford as Art Ditmar came on. He got Logan to fly to left and Pafko, tagging up at third, was out easily at the plate when Howard threw a perfect strike to Yogi Berra at home to take the Yanks out of that jam.

Berra singled to right in the Yankee fourth to compile his record 59th series hit—breaking a mark held jointly with Frankie Frisch, But Spahn, shooting for money as well as records, escaped that time by getting the next two hitters.

The Yankees, however, squared it in the sixth when Mantle led off with a single over short. Howard followed with a single to center and Bruton, who had just gone into center field, bobbled the

Tech Labels Vols Typical as Ever

'Kick-and-Wait' Tactics Have Jackets Cautious

By BERT PRATHER

Based on statistics alone, it would be pretty hard to convince a stranger in these parts that Georgia Tech shouldn't be more than a three-point favorite over the Orange of Tennessee in their SEC feud Saturday at Grant Field.

But Jacket coaches like Bobby Dodd and Ray Graves, who were once vital cogs in Tennessee football machines during their college days, just discount figures except those on the scoreboard when the Volunteers are involved.

Ray Graves

And for the very special reason that the Orangemen's system never does go for the big statistical advantage. They're perfectly willing to kick their foes back into the shadow of their goal posts and wait for the big break, then strike for the quickie.

The young t[illegible]n that Bowden Wyatt will turn loose on Grant Field before a record crowd of 44,521 Saturday is typical Tennessee.

This club had no business whatsoever holding a great Auburn team to a 0-0 halftime deadlock in the season's opener, yet that is exactly what happened. True the Wyattmen didn't make a first down against the now No. 1 team in the country, but the fact that they escaped with only a 13-0 loss proves further how dangerous their defensing tactics can be.

Then last Saturday, they cashed in quickly on an interception, lost the lead to a highly favored Mississippi State eleven and then came up with the clutch aerial game that pulled out a startling 13-8 upset.

It's things like these that long ago have caused foes to disregard statistics when the Volunteers are concerned.

Here are a few examples of the figures they'll bring along for the brush with Dodd's Jackets: In first downs the Vols have made only 10 to the opposition's 29. Their net gain from rushing is 41 compared to 427 by Auburn and Mississippi State. In the aerial department tailback Billy Majors and company show 92 yards on eight strikes out of 14 attempts. They have yielded only 75 air yards to the enemy.

And what would lull a lot of folks into false security is the fact that the No. 1 tailback in the traditional single-wing attack, Majors, has an average of only half a yard per carry.

But don't let that fool you either. Young Billy is an exceptionally fine kicker and has a perfect passing record with five out of five and one TD. And

Vols Expect Jacket Aerials

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Tennessee's Volunteers, expecting an aerial barrage from Georgia Tech in Atlanta Saturday, worked overtime Wednesday on pass defense.

Both the linemen and backs drilled on known Georgia Tech pass patterns, as operated by freshmen running from a T-formation.

Offensively, the Vols worked to polish up their own single-wing attack.

Tommy Potts, senior end who suffered a hand fracture in the Auburn game, was with the squad again on a limited basis. But Coach Bowden Wyatt said he doubted that Potts will be ready to start against Tech.

Otherwise, he said, the Vols are in top physical shape.

HERMAN SENT PAFKO HOME: 'VOICE CHANGED MY MIND'

MILWAUKEE (AP)—A "last-second decision" spawned by the fleeting memory of an incident in the second World Series game haunted coach Billy Herman and the Braves after the sixth game Wednesday.

The play that cost the crestfallen Herman and the Braves so dearly came in the second inning with one run in, one out and the bases loaded.

Shortstop Johnny Logan sent a looping fly ball to medium left field. The Yankees' Elston Howard caught the ball and then—to the surprise of many—Herman sent in the slow-footed Andy Pafko to certain death at the plate. The double play killed a promising rally and left Herman open to one of the biggest second guesses of the Series to date.

"I wasn't going to send him in at first," a dejected Herman said while slumped in a corner of the Braves' clubhouse minutes after the Yankees' 4-3 victory in 10 innings.

"Then, at the last second I thought of that throw Howard made in the second game here, the one that went over Yogi Berra's head," Herman continued in a voice so low it could barely be heard. The throw he referred to came in the Braves'

Bulldogs Switch to Offense With Box, King at Ends

By DAN KITCHENS
Special to The Constitution

ATHENS—Persistent effects of injuries will probably force Georgia to call on new flankmen to start the Florida State game.

Both early season starters, Bill Herron at right end, and Jimmy Vickers at left, are not now in shape to answer the call. And even if they play, the two rugged juniors may see only token action.

NORMAN KING
Ex-Eagle Goes Up

In line for the nod are Aaron Box at right end and Norman King at left. It would be the first starting chore for either in collegiate ranks, although both have been top reserves this fall in the Bulldogs' three starts.

Their presence in the starting line-up could also be a tip that the Bulldogs will come out swinging haymakers. King and Box are "natural" offensive ends, with good speed and hands, excellent targets for the Bulldog quarterbacks.

So far this fall Box has not been in on the receiving end of the passing game, but King caught two aerials in the Vandy game for 25 yards and set up a touchdown by being the object of an interference call against the Commodores. The Atlanta sophomore, to his chagrin, also dropped a long Charley Britt pass in the end zone against South Carolina.

That kind of mistake is one that Norman won't make very often. Vickers, still suffering from a hand injury, and Herron, victim of a jammed neck muscle, nailed down their starting roles by majoring on defense.

Both are rugged roadblocks to overcome. And although the pendulum may swing toward the offense side of the gauge at the Georgia end, defense will not be neglected. Both King and Box, a Live Oak, Fla., junior, have made good strides in their defensive assignments. King, in particular, has been very impressive in defensive workouts this week.

On call behind Norman, Vickers will be backed up on the left flank by another speedy soph, Jack Shamblin of Trion, while Gordon Kelley has moved over to the No. 3 spot at right end behind Herron.

SCRIMMAGE SCRAPS: Reserve junior right halfback Bobby Towns has been declared definitely out of the Florida State game Saturday night. However, trainer Sam Richwine says he doesn't believe the shoulder injury is of a serious nature. Bobby has proved a valuable defensive back for the Bulldogs, and is one of the team's speediest and most reliable pass receivers. . . . Meanwhile, Nat Dye and Gene Littleton, starting right tackle and second-unit right halfback, continue to make good progress from their injuries. Richwine says Dye probably will face the Seminoles, and that Littleton was back at work already.

AARON BOX
A Starting Spot?

The Bulldogs worked against FSU's unorthodox formation, notably the I. Fred Brown, sophomore left halfback from Northside, turned in several fine plays, and linebacker Cicero Lucas intercepted two "make-believe" Seminole passes. . . . Knox Culpepper, the Bulldogs' captain of 1956, was a visitor to Ag Hill for Wednesday's session. . . . Junior left tackle Larry Lancaster of College Park was back with the No. 1 unit, replacing senior Riley Gunnels, who was demoted to the No. 2 unit.

Sonny Ray Stops Cotton

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Sonny Ray, a light-heavyweight from Chicago, decisioned Eddie Cotton Wednesday night in a 10-round televised fight from the Fairgrounds Coliseum.

Two of the judges gave the fight to Ray, while the third called it a draw.

Cotton, who was making his first start of the season, carried the fight to his 23-year-old opponent through most of the early rounds, but began to tire under a punishing body attack.

BOB JONES AND ELECTRIC STEED ON COURSE AT ROYAL AND ANCIENT

Non-Playing Captain of U.S. Team Saw British Take Lead Wednesday in World Amateur

Scot Jack Leading World Am

Coe, Charles Second at 74

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP)—An autumn gale from off the roaring North Sea turned the world's first amateur golf tournament Wednesday into a fiasco and a freak.

Britain took the lead for the official team championship with 227 strokes. The United States was second with 233.

Reid Jack of Scotland, more accustomed to playing in violent air movements than anyone else here, took the lead for the unofficial world individual championship with a 36-36—72, almost a par matcher all the way.

Jack was one of the early starters, playing before the wind reached full fury. So were Charlie Coe of Oklahoma City, the U.S. national champion, and left-handed Bob Charles of New Zealand, who shared the next best individual score, 74.

The team championship is determined on an aggregate of the three best scores daily by players from each country. It is a four-day, 72-hole medal play competition.

Some of the world's finest amateurs in the field of 114 from 29 nations shot some of the highest scores of their careers.

William Hyndman III of Philadelphia had the second best U.S. score, a 79, while Billy Joe Patton, the scrambler from Morganton, N.C., shot 80.

Patton three-putted the first hole and lost a ball on the seventh. He was bunkered on two other holes. Hyndman three-putted four greens. "I would line up a four-foot putt and the wind would almost take me off my feet," he said.

Few were able to break 80. Back of the leader, Reid Jack, and his pursuers, Coe and Charles, came Luis Silverio of the Philippines, fourth with 75.

The tournament is played on St. Andrews' famed Old Course. The course is 6,936 yards long. Par is 36-36—72.

Argentina and New Zealand were tied for third place in team play with 236.

'BEST IN SEC'—BRADBERRY

Lorino Will Stalk 'Cats with Caution

By MICKEY LOGUE
Constitution Sports Writer

AUBURN, Ala.—If Blanton Collier doesn't have a posse pick him up at the state line, Auburn's Tommy Lorino could be Kentucky's No. 1 problem Saturday night.

Tommy Lorino

The Wildcats own painful memories of how dangerous the little man can be in a football suit—both on purpose and accidentally.

When Lorino was a sophomore left halfback his 68-yard zig-zag excursion set up Auburn's opening Lexington touchdown. He rammed two yards for the second half clincher, his first collegiate six points.

Quite unintentionally, he assures you, Lorino played a major role in last season's squeaky 6-0 victory over Kentucky.

In fact, most Cliff Hare Stadium witnesses are doubtful whether anybody would have scored yet had not All America tackle Lou Michaels unloaded an elbow to Lorino's jaw.

The personal foul presented the Tigers 15 yards and a successful touchdown shot.

Considering his previous premier performances and "sacrifice" against the Wildcats, it is only natural to probe Lorino's record, attitude, physical condition, coaches, teammates, etc., as prelude to another Bluegrass invasion.

Senior Lorino still stands 5-7 but weighs seven pounds more than the 165 Lorino brought to Auburn.

After triumphs over Tennessee and Chattanooga Tommy's rushing average reads 5.9 yards per carry, noticeably below that 8.44 figure that led the nation in 1956.

Jokingly asked "What's wrong with Lorino?" backfield coach Buck Bradberry jumped higher than a barefooted fellow with a blow-torch hot foot.

"What's wrong?" Bradberry exclaimed. "He's merely the best halfback in the Southeastern Conference."

"How about LSU's Billy Cannon and Kentucky's Bobby Cravens?" the visitor needled.

"I sincerely believe Lorino is a better all-around halfback than Cannon or Cravens," Bradbtrry retorted. "That doesn't mean, of course, that I wouldn't like to have Cannon and Cravens, but I wouldn't trade Tommy for either.

"Hal Herring (defensive coach) will tell you that Lorino is the best safety man in the conference, and that includes Billy Stacy. Look at all he does for Auburn: Lorino punts well; he passes accurately and can catch 'em; he's a good blocker, kickoff and punt returner and he's the hardest man in the league to get a hold of."

"It usually takes more than one man to down him, too," chimed in line coach Shot Senn.

"I'd like to have seen Cannon make that 24-yard touchdown run against Tennessee," Bradberry added. "Tommy's as valuable to us as any back is to his team, he can do more things."

"Lorino's a threat to go all the

'We Finally Got Tough'—Stengel

Duren Says He Was Hot, But Not Quite as Fast

MILWAUKEE (AP)—"We finally got tough and broke up that one-man show of theirs—that Spahn fellow."

That was Manager Casey Stengel speaking in a Yankee dressing room surprisingly calm and dignified after squaring the World Series with a 4-3, 10th inning victory Wednesday.

Casey Stengel

"I feel better now for my club and myself," said Casey. "We bounced back after a poor showing in this Series and now it goes to the wire."

Speed-balling reliever Ryne Duren, who struck out eight Braves, was mobbed by writers and photographers.

The bespectacled Duren said, "I just don't remember doing it" about a choke-up gesture he made at plate Umpire Charles Berry after a fourth ball call on Milwaukee's Johnny Logan in the 10th inning.

The TV cameras were focused on Duren at the time.

"I was hot, all right," said Duren, "the ball was high enough to be called a strike. But I can't say what I did with my hands."

Duren said he didn't think he was as fast as usual. "I think my fast ball looked faster, though, and probably was helped by the heavy humidity."

Yankee second sacker Gil McDougald, who started Spahn's downfall in the 10th with a lead-off homer, said, "This has been one real nerve-wracking Series."

Italy Announces Davis Cup Team

ROME (AP)—The Italian Tennis Federation Tuesday named Giuseppe Merlo, Nicola Pietrangeli and Orlando Sirola to meet the Philippines in the European-Asia interzone finals for the Davis Cup.

The site of the matches, however, still has not been decided. The Italian Federation said the Philippine bid to hold the matches in Manila was too low. They may be held on neutral courts.

The winner will meet the United States for the right to challenge cup-defending Australia.

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—World flyweight champion Pascual Perez of Argentina will defend his crown against Filipino Dommy Ursua in Manila, Nov. 29.

Yank Victory Swings Bettors

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees Wednesday night were made 11-10 favorites in man-to-man odds to win the World Series Thursday.

Broadway odds-makers made the Yankees "even-six" for the seventh and final game of the classic. That means if you like Milwaukee you put up five dollars to win five dollars.

JACKETS

though that yardage appears rather puny, he is rated by Jacket scouts as a dangerous runner.

Senior fullback Carl Smith is another highly respected Tennessee runner, yet he's just a shade above Majors in the statistics, with 1.8 per carry average.

Since the Jackets have played three games, to draw a comparison statistics-wise would involve running the cards through Tech's "Big Brain" Univac.

But anyway here are the Jacket figures: 41 first downs to 25 (by Kentucky, Florida State and Tulane); 500 yards net rushing to 358 for the opposition; 156 yards on 15 completions out of 37 against 147 yards on 15 out of 34 tosses by the three foes. Like Tennessee, one of Tech's passes resulted in a TD.

Individually, defensive halfback Floyd Faucette is far ahead of the best Volunteer toter with 106 yards on 23 carries for 4.6 average. Halfback Cal James is next with 90 yards in 27 carries for 3.3. Lester Simerville, the hard-nosed little fullback who is likely to miss Saturday's game, has the best average among the Jacket regulars with 65 in 13 slashes at the line for 5.1.

Quarterback Freddie Braselton, the Jackets' top passer, has completed 12 of 29 for 114 yards. This added to his 31 on the ground makes him Tech's leader in total offense.

In kicking it appears to be a standoff between Gerald Burch and Jae Delany of Tech and Majors and Danney Webb of the Vols..

The extra point and field goal departments are manned by a couple of experts. For Tennessee it is Sammy Burklow and for the Engineers it will be Soph. Tommy Wells, who is leading the team in scoring with seven.

Goal line scrimmage was featured in Wednesday's session, which wound up contact work for the week.

Blackburn's Little Helpers Do Big Things For the Galloping Campbells, Too

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Contrary to popular conception, the backfield of Smyrna Campbell's number one ranked Class AAA football eleven in Georgia is not made up of Don Blackburn and three blocking dummies.

Charlie Roberts

True, Blackburn is Coach Gerald Gillespie's idea of the best quarterback he ever saw in the state. But Gillespie is just as insistent that Truman Holtzclaw, Ronny Duncan and Wayne Hollis are remarkably able backs in their own rights.

Duncan, the only senior among them, indeed has done everything except sell tickets and clean up the stadium for two years. He punts, kicks off, boots extra points. He's the best blocker of the lot and last year was the leading runner for a region championship team. At a mere 143 pounds he averages about 40 yards punting and sometimes kicks off over the goal.

"Hollis, Holtzclaw and Duncan are peas in a pod," grins Gillespie. "They're all about the same size, 5-7 or 5-8 and from 143 to 155 pounds. They're built alike, run alike, have exceptional speed and for the life of me I couldn't tell you which one is the better ball carrier. Their great faking on our belly series has a lot to do with making us 'go.' "

Oh yes. Campbell does have a line, too, one sparked by co-captain, tackle and senior class president Travis Holtzclaw, Truman's brother. Is it, outweighed as it is from 10 to 35 pounds per man each game, a good one? Well—Marietta, unscored upon until Campbell came along, and Griffin tallied 139 and 134 points in four other games. They fell to the Panthers, 16-7 and 13-12.

THE FUNNYBONE — Kay McLeod, our sometimes-sports-reporting girl, who knows her football, received benefits from being The Constitution's church news editor while covering the Tucker-West Gwinnett battle of the unbeaten at Avondale. No one believed a girl was reporting the game so she had to buy a program and get her own spotter. One of her minister friends showed compassion and volunteered to do the spotting.

PREP PRATTLE—Southwest, beset by injuries, hasn't scored yet but Bob Greer's tremendous defensive coaching chore has the Wolves scaring the pants off some top teams. Exhibit A: Northside 6, Southwest 0. . . . "Agoos Gets Loose" read a headline the other a.m. He'll be getting loose quite often for the next two years, for this is Sylvester's Andy Agoos (pronounced the way you think it is) who scored 5 TDs and rushed 15 times for 158 yards against Cuthbert. . . . Wrightsville folks believe they have a real college prospect in their sensational Bill Mayo, who scored 5 TDs in a recent game. . . . Lakeview, outscoring five foes, 122-19, has a back named Frank Keller that up-Chattanooga-way folks vow is the state's best. . . . Bobby Harris, running for 8 TDs and 511 yards on 100 carries, strikes terror into the hearts of foes of Warren County, the team that snipped Louisville Academy's unbeaten string. . . . James Butler, 6-2, 190-pound end who averages 18 tackles an outing, and guard Richard Ridley are rated as rare college prospects by Murray County mentor Tom Clary.

ALEX PARRAMORE, Valdosta's brilliant fullback, was stricken with encephalitis (sleeping sickness) Monday and is through for the year. . . . Pete Roberts, Statesboro's star guard, has been declared ineligible. . . . Screven County's Dan Davis ran for 209 yards on nine snaps against Cochran. . . . Coffee County's Dickie Bittaker swooped for 126 on 10 lugs against Jenkins. . . . Bonneau Ansley, Westminster's 140-pound QB, is as fine a back as many 190-pounders. . . . Aulbert Kinsaul's Monigomery County team is 5-0 and the top down-South surprise. . . . Carlton Lewis, whose West Point teams spawned such backs as Fob James, Larry Ruffin, Ray Anderson, Jimmy Hester and Ranny Smith, says he has his best team in five years at West Point (5-0) although not a player weighs more than 170. He hails pass-happy David Leverette and rugged Lee Scroggins, a great defender and blocker, two of the best backs he's had. Scroggins kicked the first field goal in the school's history against Mt. Zion—from the two-yard line on second down, because Lewis didn't care to run up a big score. West Point has scored a TD on the last play in the first half for 3 straight games—2 by Leverette, one by Phil Martin. . . . Brown's David Anderson, top rusher averagewise in the City League, couldn't play at all in 1957 because of an injured knee.

Burton and Fisher Readying TD Duel

Murphy, Crimsons Collide; Cooper Plays O'Keefe

By PAUL ATKINSON

Three of 3-AAA's top five scorers will bid for more points Thursday night in a brace of sub-regional games.

Doug Cooper, best point producer with 36, and his Sylvan buddies collide with rugged O'Keefe in a 7:30 p.m. Grady Stadium duel. No. 3 scorer Johnny Burton and his Roosevelt colleagues grapple with tied for Nos. 4 and 5 scorer Mike Fisher and his Murphy Eagles in a Cheney TD spectacular.

Elsewhere, Gordon High School and St. Pius X wrestle at Stone Mountain; West Fannin visits North Whitfield and the Aquinas "B" team calls on Harlem.

Red Emmert's Crimson Tide will rank a slight favorite over Lefty Thompson's vastly-improved club. A solid defense anchored by Joe Pope and Gerry Manders and Burton's scooting, which has garnered 26 points, have been the chief reasons.

Thompson has brought the Eagles a long way back from their 1957 showing of 0-8-2. A western sub-division victory over Smith, 21-13, last week boosted 'em into a three-way tie with Roosevelt and North Fulton.

Prime reason has been a large showing by sophomore fullback Mike Fisher, a regular only because of an injury to Walter Counts. Fisher has romped for four touchdowns and 24 points plus 262 yards, and a 5.1 yards rush mark.

Jimmy Green and Dan Kennerly will match two of the city's better quarterbacks in Sylvan's Cooper and O'Keefe's Ralph Hunter for the edification of an Irish homecoming crowd.

Cooper, besides scoring 36 points, has hit on 10 of 28 passes for 158 yards and a touchdown, and rushed for 170 yards.

Hurth Calls Oct. 15 Meeting At Birmingham

Southern Assn. directors, including Atlanta Cracker President Earl Mann, meet Oct. 15 at Birmingham in the annual get-together which was originally scheduled Sept. 7.

League President Charlie Hurth refuses to elaborate on what will be discussed at the meeting. But directors want to know which teams will remain in the eight-team circuit. Shakiest spots appear to be Nashville and New Orleans.

The meeting precedes a confab of all minor leagues, called by minor league boss George Trautman, Oct. 21 at Memphis.

WHIT'S WINNING FORMULA

WE'LL BREAK HOMER SLUMP TODAY

By WHITLOW WYATT
Milwaukee Braves' Pitching Coach

MILWAUKEE—We're going to break out of this home run slump Thursday and win the thing. I just feel it.

Look at those figures . . . the Yankees have hit 10 home runs and we've gotten only two, one by our pitcher, Lew Burdette, and the other by our leadoff man, Billy Bruton.

Whitlow Wyatt

You can't expect fellows like Hank Aaron, Ed Mathews, Joe Adcock and Del Crandall to go seven games without poppin' one. I know they'll hit one out of the park for us yet, and since there's only one game left, this has got to be it.

That was some game Warren Spahn pitched to be a 4-3 loser Wednesday. He didn't have quite as good stuff as he had Sunday, but he was mixing 'em up better—except for those home run balls Hank Bauer and Gil McDougald hit.

The one Bauer got in the first inning came on a low fast ball. McDougald caught a fast ball, too, but it was a high one. No matter how good a pitcher is, he sometimes slips. Spahn did that with McDougald in the 10th, because McDougald is a high ball hitter.

Some people have been asking me what I consider the turning point of the game. It would have to be that play Elston Howard made in left-field in the second inning. You'll recall he threw out Andy Pafko after Johnny Logan's fly ball.

Sending Pafko in was sound baseball by Coach Billy Herman. Anytime it's two men out, you have to gamble. So many things can happen . . . the throw can be wide, high or low. And just a game or two before, Howard had thrown one over catcher Yogi Berra's head.

Howard had to throw a perfect strike to get Pafko. And he did. It was right on the button.

This man Howard may not be the game's best outfielder, but, golly, what a job he's done for the Yankees in these last two games. That diving catch he made on Red Schoendienst in the fifth game took us out of it; now he comes up with this peg.

Looking back over it, you can figure two other things that had an important bearing. We made three errors, and that gave the Yankees three more chances than they should have had. If we had gotten those men, McDougald wouldn't have come to bat in the 10th.

And another thing that may have been overlooked came when Frank Torre flied out to end it all. From where we were sitting in the bullpen, that one looked as though it was going to fall in.

But it didn't, and here's why. Torre is not a fast runner, so the teams figure they can cheat a little on him, play him back a little in right-field. That's where McDougald was when he caught that ball.

Ryne Duren looked like a pitcher for the first time. In the other games he was just throwing the ball down the middle. But he was hitting the corners, moving the ball around and giving us that real fast ball. We were swinging at quite a few bad balls when he was in there because that high, hard one really takes off.

While we're discussing striking out, it really hurt to see Ed Mathews set a new Series record for strikeouts with 11. Ed hasn't hit the ball real good all year, but you just know he's better than this.

Maybe it's because he's mentally and physically tense at the plate. Whatever it is, we wish we knew, so we could get him out of it.

Our pitching staff is in good shape. We'll bring Lew Burdette back for this last one, with Bob Rush as our "long relief" man, and all the others with the possible exception of Spahn in reserve.

I heard in the clubhouse that either Don Larsen or Johnny Kucks would go for the Yankees. Larsen pitched mighty good ball the other day. But if his arm isn't right, we could get to him early.

You could tell that Whitey Ford wasn't going to stay around long Wednesday. He came in with a 3-1 pitch on the ground, and a good pitcher who's "on" just doesn't do that.

I thought that Don McMahon should have been a little more careful with Bill Skowron when he relieved Spahnie. He threw one outside, and that's just where this big Skowron likes 'em.

This club of ours is real funny. They're not particularly downhearted about this loss, rather they feel they'll come back and get 'em in the big one. I feel that way, too.

It all goes back to that thing about homer hitting. We're due to put a few out of the park. Thursday's the day.

ball and the fleet - footed Mantle went to third on the error. Berra brought him home with a sacrifice fly to center and, while Spahn squeaked out of the jam after that, it was all tied up.

Ditmar had been lifted for a pinch hitter as the Yanks tried to break it open in the top of the sixth and Duren, the weak-eyed, strong - armed fireball pitcher, came on and struck out the side—a feat he duplicated in the ninth.

Then they came to the 10th and one of the wildest innings of the series.

McDougald started it all by walloping his home run and, with two out, Howard singled and went to third on Berra's single.

That was all for Spahn and McMahon came on.

Skowron, in a bad slump at season's end and no ball of fire in the Series thus far, singled to right to score Howard with the run that turned out to be the decisive one. McMahon then struck out Duren but the damage had been done.

Then the Braves ran at them—only to fall one short as Turley, who lost the second game of the Series but proved his courage as well as his class in winning the fifth, came on to put out the fire.

The Braves will go Thursday—in the seventh and final game—with easy - going Lew Burdette, who won three games for them last year and was 1-1 this time. For the Yankees it will be Don Larsen or Johnny Kucks.

"But no matter who it is," yelled the off-the-floor Yankees, "we're finally on even footing and at last have a chance to win."

A GASLESS BOATING FRIEND IS TRULY A FRIEND IN NEED

By CHARLES ELLIOTT

One of the impressive qualities of most experienced boatmen is the way they'll go to the assistance of anyone who appears to be in trouble, no matter what the inconvenience is to them.

Charles Elliott

It gives a guy a sense of security to know that if his motor conks out, or he happens to get caught in high winds, rough seas and begins to take on water, he may expect help from any passing boat, even though they see him from a distance.

I had an example of this maritime courtesy only a couple of weeks ago. I was barreling down the lake from one hot fishing spot to another (if you are not familiar with the term, a hot fishing spot is where you once caught a fish) when the motor revved up as though it had sheared a pin.

I cut my juice and pulled the propeller out of the water to look it over. While I was standing on my head with other parts of my anatomy elevated skyward, a couple of fishermen left a cove where they were fishing and chugged by slow motor at least half a mile into the middle of the lake to see if we were in trouble, and if they could be of assistance.

Before I had time to complete my examination of the blade and pin under it, three more boats, one containing fishermen and the other two pleasure riders, made a long arc off their regular course to see if they could help.

Fortunately, I didn't have to be pulled in. One of the collars inside the wheel was slipping at high speeds, but the fishing boat would do about ten miles per hour, so we plowed on up to the Sinclair Yacht Club to confer with Dick Lynn, who operates the dock and its facilities.

Both Dick and his son, Dale, are top outboard mechanics. The elder Lynn turned his head slightly, listened to the hum of the motor and diagnosed our trouble without drawing a second breath. Not only that, but he did something about it. He didn't have a spare propeller in his place to fit my motor, so he went into the shop and took the one off his own motor, offering it for my use for the remainder of my fishing trip on the lake. He didn't even ask my name. He had no assurance that he'd even have his blade returned.

I operate on as many lakes as I can haul my boat around to. I've talked with other fellows whose favorite lakes, for one reason or another, I haven't been able to try. They tell me the same thing—that the practice of lending a hand to a fellow when he appears in need, is common among boatsmen everywhere. Good thing, too! There are times when what seems merely to be a friendly gesture may save a life, or more than one.

Most of the time, of course, when you see a boat drifting with one or two occupants on a lake, he is in no danger. He simply may be fishing where he thinks the old fighters hang out.

If he's working feverishly over his motor, then you can tell before you reach him that it's on the blink. If he's looking disgusted with himself, or wielding a paddle with a dead motor behind him, the chances are he's out of gas. I've pulled in quite a few guys who didn't remember to replenish their petrol. Worse still, I've been pulled in a few times myself, and I can assure you it gives a guy a complex to be hauled up to a dock and have to explain his predicament. But I've never figured out how it could be any worse than having to paddle that three or four miles to the nearest marine filling station.

Stopping for a fellow boatman in trouble is a custom which may well pay off—it gives him the idea and some day he may even stop for you.

Herman Sent Pafko Home

seven-run frame of a game they won 13-5.

"It's just as if a voice told me to change my mind," Herman continued, obviously upset by the turn of events that enabled the Bombers to tie the Series at three games apiece. "That's the way it goes, I guess."

Manager Fred Haney washed his hands of the play, saying: "I was not in a position to see it from where I was. The bench is not a good spot. That's what we've got coaches for. Herman sent him in. Andy didn't go on his own."

Across the room, the 37-year old Pafko indicated that he was surprised at Herman's decision. Said Pafko:

"Billy told me to go. I was sure the ball wasn't hit too far so I yelled, 'Billy, what should I do?' he said, 'Yeah, go,' or something like that. I didn't have a chance the way he threw that ball."

Haney stalked around his cubicle, muttering under his breath. Then he said, "we had plenty of chances to score. What'd we leave on base—nine?"

"Hookie (Warren Spahn) pitched a helluva game," Haney continued. "We should have won it for him."

Frances Rich Takes Georgia Medal Lead

Special to The Constitution

PINE MOUNTAIN — Frances Rich, former holder of the Ga. and Texas state championships grabbed first round lead in the seventh Georgia State Medal Play tournament at Ida Cason Callaway Gardens golf course Wednesday with a 37-39—76.

The Bainbridge star's working margin as the field moved into Thursday's second round was only one stroke under Atlanta's Janice Phelps, another former holder of the State match play crown. Janice had 40-37—77.

Mrs. Tom Molloy, the Columbus Country Club champ for the past two years, held down third with 40-38—78, while defending champion Mrs. A. H. Allen of Albany stood in fourth place with 36-43—79.

Dodie Garlington, Atlanta, 79; Dot Clay, Atlanta, 81; Mrs. Curtis Jordan, Columbus, 82 and Ceil Maclaurin, Savannah, 83, were others in championship flight of eight.

A record field of 74 is competing in this 54-hole event staged each year in honor of Mrs. O. B. Keeler, founder of Georgia Women's Golf Assn.

Mrs. Jamell Corley will probably remember the ninth hole here for many a day. On her first time around Mrs. Corley cleared the water and made a par three. The next time she took a 34 on the hole.

way at anytime," affirmed Jimmy Laster, offensive start of the Chattanooga victory, who was Tommy's sub before switching to right half.

Only one Auburn player consulted refused to go to Cliff's edge supporting Lorino's talents. Tommy, himself, isn't satisfied. He said so, and like the others, he respects Kentucky.

"That's the toughest team we played last year," he recalled. "And they're gonna be tough again. I wouldn't be surprised if they don't want us as bad as anybody does. Sure, I'm glad Michaels has graduated, but they're stronger anyway."

PLAIN FACTS — Head coach Ralph Jordan seems more worried about Kentucky than any other opponent during the 16-game winning streak that makes the Tigers No. 1. . . . He stressed kicking Wednesday, deploring Auburn's 30.7 punting average. . . . Lorino, Laster, Jimmy Pettus and Ed Dyas booted.

'BIRD JUDGE' BASILIO DUE HERE OCT. 18

Carmen Basilio, by trade a participant in the boxing ring, has turned judge.

Basilio Wednesday consented to serve as a judge in the Stone Mountain Field Trial Club's Fall Amateur Stake to be held at the Col. Early Stark Farms in Commerce, Oct. 18-22.

Carmen Basilio

The middleweight boxer, who has become something of an expert at his hobby of bird dogs, telephoned his consent to club president Dan Sheridan of Douglasville Wednesday.

Basilio currently is attending the National Pheasant Championships at Baldwinsville, N.Y., with Waynesboro dog trainer Earl Crangle.

Basilio will judge the Open All-Age Stake along with Bill Etchells of Newton and Carl Cooling of Albany.—CARSON.

Stop Britt . . . That's FSU's Worry

By BILL McGROTHA

Special to The Constitution

TALLAHASSEE—Florida State practiced anew Wednesday on ways and means of containing Charley Britt, University of Georgia's talented running and passing threat.

Coach Tom Nugent reminded his Seminoles they haven't yet been against a quarterback as versatile as the Bulldog junior.

Meanwhile, new injuries cropped up in camp.

Fullback Floyd Lawrence, who bruised a shoulder in the Wake Forest hassle, was in sweat clothes again. Paul Pasquale may replace him as No. 2 man at the post, behind Fred Pickard.

First-string end Pete Fleming reinjured his leg against the Deacons and Waycross' Ron Hinson probably will replace him in the starting line-up.

Two reserve tackles, Dan Strickland and Clare Bagnall, are also ailing and will not play in the Jacksonville game on Saturday night.

Starting guard Terry Moran has an infected hand that's slowing him in workouts.

Weekly tackling statistics were announced after coaches checked the Wake Forest game films. Guard Al Ulmer still leads the squad with 23 tackles, 15 assists. He's closely followed by Moran with 21 and seven.

Lawrence ranks third with 17 and four. Halfback Jack Espenship, tackle John Spivey, end Tony Romeo each have 13 tackles apiece.

Florida State's starting backfield seems to have jelled firmly, with Vic Prinzi at quarter, Bobby Renn at lefthalf, Espenship at righthalf and Pickard at full.

Up until last week Prinzi alternated with Joe Majors but the Waverly, N.Y., senior dominated playing time at the spot in the Wake Forest game, coming through spectacularly.

Renn and Espenship have been starters right along. Coaches thought Espenship played a brilliant all-round game against Wake Forest. The Lake City sophomore is an excellent blocker and defender, leads the team in pass catches with nine.

Pickard started for the first time at fullback last week, and led the team's ground attack. So he's down to open again this week.

Hey! It's Corn Bread Week!

Churn up the buttermilk and put on the greens; it's official Corn Bread Week in Georgia by proclamation of the governor.

Gov. Griffin has signed a proclamation declaring the special observance Oct. 6-11 to commemorate "the ancient and honorable industry of corn milling and the making of corn bread."

Georgia ranks 11th in the nation in corn production and is one of the leading states in consumption of corn meal.

The annual observance of Corn Bread Week originated in Georgia several years ago. Since then a number of other states have set aside special days in honor of the corn pone and the hush puppy.

Pravda Asks Houses And Less Luxury

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda Wednesday complained too much money was being spent on the construction of fancy administrative offices and sports arenas and not enough on housing. The newspaper called in an editorial for an end to "irrational expenditure" on luxury buildings so that additional funds could be made available for construction of homes.

BAD VENTURES HEADED OFF, AILING MENDED

Small Businessmen Offered A Supermarket of U.S. Ideas

By BOB WILLIMON

The Commerce department is a veritable "supermarket," well stocked with aids for business.

But the customers the department would perhaps most like to serve — small businessmen — are literally staying away in droves.

Despite "circularization" and various other media aimed at getting the department's story across to businessmen the organization's Atlanta field office and its 32 counterparts elsewhere in the nation are possibly one of the "most overlooked" sources of information in the small business world.

Is this because small businessmen tend to regard the Commerce department as a big, sprawling organization that hasn't got time to fool with "small potatoes"?

Or because the small businessmen regard it as a big-business, fact-finding organization whose advice, if there is time to give it, is too generalized to be really helpful to the "little man"?

If your thinking is along these lines, then here's something that might surprise you.

Take the case of a young man who recently decided to open a hardware store with his $15,000 savings.

He had selected a store location and paid a $900 deposit on a $300-a-month rental lease. Then he decided to visit his local Commerce department field office and discuss what his "next move" should be.

A department business analyst, after consulting a table of operating ratios for that type of business, "regretfully" told him:

"Your next move should be to try to cancel the lease and recover your rent deposit, because you don't have enough capital to engage in that business at a $300-a-month location."

Moral: See the Commerce Department before making capital commitments. You might head off a costly mistake.

Then there's the case of the young sales executive who checked with the department to find out why his firm's normally $3 million-a-year sales were falling off "markedly."

Questioning by a department specialist revealed the executive had been basing his sales program on the suggestions of his salesmen. A check into the field office's marketing research data —based on Census Bureau reports —disclosed material shifts in both the population trend and the retail pattern of the area served by the company.

By shifting some of his sales staff to areas with better potentials, the executive was able to bring about "some improvement" in the situation.

Right here in Atlanta—at 604 Volunteer Building, Atlanta 3, Tel. JA. 2-4121—there's an eight-man full-time staff ready and eager to help your business find similar answers to such perplexing problems.

"No business is too large or too small" to avail itself of Commerce Department aids, said Merrill C. Lofton, Atlanta field manager.

Available are many types of aids.

One businesman might want to take advantage of the local field office library—one of the finest in the nation on matters related to business references, directories, business publications, technical reports, marketing, distribution, and research from private as well as public sources.

Another businessman, searching for new products to make or for processing methods, might find special interest in the department's Office of Technical Service.

The Atlanta field office can put one in touch with over 300,000 reports dealing primarily with development in metallurgy, chemicals, plastics, ceramics, electronics, fuels, instruments and mineralogy. Also, through OTS, one can latch onto any of 4,300 government - owned patents available for license to private firms on a non-exclusive royalty-free basis.

In international trade, the local Commerce office will provide assistance ranging from help to the new exporter in selecting prospects in foreign markets to expediting clearance of shipments. Experts stand ready to meet with trade groups, and manufacturers can get help in solving production problems.

For the very small businessman —and there are more than 15,000 of them employing less than 10 people each in the three-county Atlanta metropolitan area—there are many helpful pamphlets. Such as, for instance, "Establishing and Operating Your Own Business."

This book gives you a check list for establishing a business. It gives ideas on what your rent should be, how much employes can be paid and how much gross business you'll have to do to make a living. Specific booklets cover stores dealing in sporting goods, flowers, liquor, drugs, gasoline, and many other products.

As for counsel, department experts "will always find time to sit down and talk things over" with a small businessman, Lofton said.

Commerce Secretary Weeks has said his department aims to serve businesses of "all sizes." That includes small business. You're paying for it; why not use it?

Next, in Friday's Constitution: Can small business cut itself a profitable slice of a multi-billion-dollar pie by joining hands with big business?

Business Is on Upturn, Many Indicators Show

NEW YORK (AP)—Signs of a continuing business upturn in many lines appeared Wednesday.

Paperboard mills reported demand at the highest level in more than a year. Paperboard—used by manufacturers of everything from toasters to turbines for packaging goods—is a sensitive barometer of business activity.

Record sales but slightly lower earnings for the fiscal year ended Aug. 2 were reported by R. H. Macy & Co., New York, now observing its 100th anniversary. Macy, one of the nation's biggest department store chains (Davison-Paxon Co., Atlanta, is one of its subsidiaries), had sales of $456,359,000 — up nearly 2 per cent over $447,639,000 for the previous 53-week fiscal year. Earnings of $6,589,000 (or $3.20 a share) compared with $6,986,000 o(r $3.44 a share) in fiscal 1957.

Maytag Co., manufacturer of home appliances, said business in the September quarter amounted to $26,550,000 for a clear-cut gain over the $25,541,277 recorded in the same three months last year.

A continued boom in the natural gas industry was indicated by W. H. Wildes, chairman of Republic Gas Co. He told stockholders net income in the current fiscal year is likely to top the $3,100,682, or $1.09 a share, earned in the year ended June 30.

Ryder System, Inc., Miami, Fla., highway transportation firm, forecast 195 earnings of $3 a share or "maybe a little higher." The company earned $1,825,480 or $2.88 a share, in 1957.

Export, Rain Boost Grains

CHICAGO (AP)—Expanding export sales of wheat and wet weather over portions of the Midwest accounted for higher prices for most futures on the Board of Trade.

Wet fields in the midwest corn and soybean belt held back the harvest in some areas and this brought buying of corn and bean futures. The weather bureau reported more rain is in prospect during the next five days.

Nearby December wheat was in greatest demand and the price at one time was up a full cent a bushel, but fell back fractionally near the close.

Wheat traders said reports from the Southwest indicate producers still are withholding their wheat from terminal markets. Only in a few instances, they say, had there been any tendency to sell wheat to make storage space available for new feed grains despite rapid progress being made in harvesting of milo, corn and soybeans.

Steadiness in rye futures was attributed to strength in wheat, Oats followed corn.

Lint Mixed On Crop Data

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures closed 15 cents a bale lower to 65 cents higher, with trading influenced by the government monthly crop report.

The Department of Agriculture estimated the 1958 crop at 11,675,000 bales or 430,000 bales less than the September forecast and a little under average trade expectations.

Futures rallied mildly on the report, and the failure of the market to show much response later caused prices to sag. A partial rally developed near the close.

With no major change indicated in the cotton supply, traders felt that the movement of cotton into the loan will remain a dominant market factor.
